Storytelling Across Japanese Conversational Genre Polly Ellen Szatrowski, 2010 This book investigates how Japanese participants accommodate to and make use of genre-specific characteristics to make stories tellable, create interpersonal involvement, negotiate responsibility, and show their personal selves. The analyses of storytelling in casual conversation, animation narratives, television talk shows, survey interviews, and large university lectures focus on participation, participatory framework, topical coherence, involvement, knowledge, the story recipient's role, prosody, and nonverbal behavior. Storytellers across genre are shown to use linguistic, paralinguistic, prosody, reported speech, style shifting, demonstratives, repetition, ellipsis, co-construction, connectives, final particles, onomatopoeia, and nonverbal gesture, gaze, head nodding, devices to involve their recipients, and recipients also use a multiple of devices: laughter, repetition, responsive forms, posture changes to shape the development of the stories. Nonverbal behavior proves to be a rich resource and constitutive feature of storytelling across genre. The analyses also shed new light on grammar across genre: ellipsis, demonstratives, clause combining, and illustrate a variety of methods for studying genre.

A Comparative Study on the Translation of Detective Stories from a Systemic Functional Perspective Yan Wang, 2020-08-31 This book presents a corpus-based investigation of verbal projection in detective stories and their translations. Adopting both diachronic and synchronic approaches to compare two different Chinese translations, the book is one of the first attempts to conduct a comprehensive lexico-grammatical, logico-semantic, and rhetorical, as well as contextual analysis of verbal projection in the Chinese context, especially the classical Chinese language context. Further, it studies the differences and similarities of different translators' choices from both diachronic and synchronic perspectives. Given its scope, the book is relevant for all those interested in functional linguistics, translation studies, and detective stories.
