The engines are fitted with a heat exchanger for freshwater. This, connected to the water cooling of the engine block, cools the fresh water and exhaust manifold. The water manifold cooling pump is designed so that it also cools the exhaust pump.

The engines are lubricated by means of a pressure lubricating system, where an oil pump supplies lubricating oil to all the lubricating points in the correct quantities at all engine speeds. The pistons on the 70-type engines are cooled by oil that flows through special cooling holes in the engine block.

The cover part of the pistons functions as an oil collector.

The fuel system is well protected from interruptions during running by means of electrically operated fuel filters. On the TAMD60 engines the fuel injection pump is fitted mounted onto the other engine from the pump fitted in a block.
