The Social Construction of Russia's Resurgence Anne L. Clunan, 2009-06-01 Shortlisted 2010 Joseph Rothschild Prize in Nationalism and Ethnic Studies Association for the Study of Nationalities Once again it appears that Russia is marching to the forefront of the international stage Anne L. Clunan's analysis of Russia's resurgence convincingly argues that traditional security concerns historical aspirations and human agency are coalescing around a new national identity and reconfigured national interests in the post-Soviet nation Her work moves beyond balance of power and realist politics to posit a new interdisciplinary theory aspirational constructivism This groundbreaking theory draws on international relations research and social psychology Clunan argues that the need for collective self-esteem creates aspirations often based in a nation's past that directly shape its national and security interests In applying this theory to Russia she points to the nation's continuing efforts to exert influence over former Soviet satellite states and relates the desire for international status found in five broad Russian national self-images Western statist Slavophile neocommunist and nationalist to Russia's definition of its security interests with respect to Europe Eurasia and nuclear weapons Clunan's examination of how sociology social psychology and traditional international politics affect post-Soviet Russian identity and security concerns is truly cross-disciplinary A concluding chapter discusses the policy implications of aspirational constructivism for Russia and other nations and a methodological appendix lays out a framework for testing the theory
