Grow Up Guide: An Introduction to DIY Laneway Greening Dr Peter J Irga, 2020-03-03 In urban environments where space is costly an innovative approach to increasing the abundance of plants in cities is to grow them vertically as green walls rather than horizontally Whether growing on independent self supporting structures or directly on buildings plants can use largely underexploited vertical space allowing an additional type of urban greening to be incorporated into the urban environment This is especially true for urban laneways that can undergo revitalisation activation and engagement through greening It is becoming clear that to bring city people closer to the ecosystem services that urban green infrastructure provides it is important to incorporate urban greening into small scale projects in local residentially oriented communities By increasing green spaces and other nature based solutions through methods such as laneway greening including low cost green wall systems individuals will be provided with valuable opportunities to engage with the positive outcomes Introduction of urban greening and support a sustainable movement While there is a vast and growing literature on both the benefits of volunteering and value of urban green space the social impact of community gardening remains largely overlooked To ensure the longevity of green wall projects their benefits to society must be investigated promoted and realised to encourage community involvement Research in the space suggests that urban low income individuals can have limited connections between themselves and nature restricting potential social interactions health wellbeing and recreation The objective of this guide is to establish an enabling environment to facilitate the uptake of vertical greening systems more commonly known as Green Walls within urban environments at a community level To achieve this a coherent framework is provided that will provide guidance on planning designing and managing a green wall within community space This project is a collaborative enterprise that unites academia government and community know how to produce a complete practical and inclusive means of enabling the expansion of urban greening
