in the chaotic person of Larry Pettifer bored radical don philanderer and for twenty years Tim's mercurial double agent against the now vanquished Communist threat Between the two stands an unresolved rivalry that dates all the way back to their shared boyhood at public school As the story opens Larry and Emma have disappeared Have they run off together Are they lovers Has Larry lured Emma into some dark game she cannot understand Setting off in pursuit of them Tim discovers that he too is being pursued by his former masters The hunter becomes the hunted Raiding his own past like a thief he follows Larry and Emma into the minefield physical and emotional of their new allegiance And as Tim advances across the moral wastes of post Cold War Europe the battered landscape of England after Thatcher the lawless worlds of Moscow and Southern Russia his dilemma deepens Finding himself deprived of both past and future a dispossessed loyalist he must grapple with his own leftover humanity as the values he fought to preserve fall away and the spectre of the reinvented Russian empire begins to haunt the ruins of the Soviet dream Our Game is John le Carré at his incomparable best
