The Epistemology of Desire and the Problem of Nihilism Allan Hazlett, 2024-07-12 Most people have wondered whether anything really matters some have temporarily thought that nothing really matters and some philosophers have defended the view that nothing really matters However if someone thinks that nothing matters if they are a nihilist about value then it seems that it is irrational for them to care about anything It seems that nihilism about value mandates total indifference This is the problem of nihilism Allan Hazlett addresses in The Epistemology of Desire and the Problem of Nihilism Hazlett argues that the problem of nihilism arises because desire and thus caring is a species of evaluation that admits of irrationality This contradicts the influential Humean view that desire does not admit of irrationality which has a ready solution to the problem of nihilism since desire does not admit of irrationality it cannot be irrational to care about something that you believe does not matter However following G E Anscombe Hazlett argues that desire has the same relationship to goodness as belief has to truth just as truth is the accuracy condition for belief goodness is the accuracy condition for desire This reveals desire as an appropriate target of epistemological inquiry in the same way that belief is an appropriate target of epistemological inquiry Desires can amount to knowledge in the same way that beliefs can amount to knowledge and crucially for the problem of nihilism desire admits of irrationality in the same way that belief admits of irrationality Nevertheless although it is obviously irrational to believe something that you believe is not true Hazlett argues that it is not irrational to desire something you believe is not good despite the fact that goodness is the accuracy condition for desire This provides a solution to the problem of nihilism and shows that nihilism about value can coherently be combined with the anti Humean view that desire is a species of evaluation

Contemporary social transformations characterised by multi dimensional globalisation and technological change have lent new impetus to the emergence of internationally oriented and interdisciplinary childhood and youth studies Analysis of sharpened polarisations of chances and risks within and between generations in specific life circumstances meets up with the re conceptualisation of childhood and youth as social constructions within the life course As such insulated national discourses are no longer an adequate framework to address such issues economic and cultural globalisation processes exert dual and reciprocal influences restructuring societies and identities from within and without This collection offers a three fold thematic focus on the social construction of the life course privileging gendered and family transitions and transformations on the contours of not belonging in particular bringing migration and poverty into the spotlight and on the potential of virtual worlds for creating and enabling new positive and negative forms of individual social and political action on the part of young people This collection thus offers a particular snapshot of the current landscape of childhood and youth studies and it provides a set of exemplars from diverse national contexts Each chapter can stand for itself but the contributions are ordered thematically not according to the corner of the world from which they derive As the introductory chapter explores the intention is via a loose vectoring of theme and context to encourage multiple opportunities for reflection on relations between the specificities and commonalities of children s and young people s lives today This volume joins the growing library of scholarly resources for international and interdisciplinary childhood and youth studies it brings together well established and young scholars writing from an unusual range of national and cultural contexts The collection will be of interest not simply for specialist researchers and those in related fields but equally as a teaching and learning resource for higher education professionals and students in social sciences and education including courses that link theory and research with policy and practice
