Handbook of Aviation Neuropsychology Robert Bor, Carina Eriksen, Randy J. Georgemiller, Alastair L. Gray, 2024-11-11

The field of aviation neuropsychology helps us to understand and improve human performance and safety in the aerospace industry, both for the estimated 300,000 commercial pilots and the 4.5 billion passengers they transport every year. This handbook brings together a group of internationally renowned academic and industry experts to provide a comprehensive overview of the background, goals, principles, challenges, and associated practice skills and research themes of aviation neuropsychology. After an introduction to the history and development of aviation psychology, additional sections focus on the importance of prevention and resilience to enhance airline workers' cognitive and mental functioning to reduce the risk of human errors and accidents, as well as the different aspects of assessment, including pilot medical certification, neuropsychological testing, and cultural considerations. Additional chapters explore how we can learn from past errors and build on existing strengths. Finally, special aspects are examined, including the role of different conditions, e.g., neurological and psychological disorders, and report writing in aviation. Readers will find the book full of unique insights, theory, and research, giving them a comprehensive overview of the field. While the book is designed primarily for health care professionals, neuropsychologists, clinical psychologists, aviation psychologists, aviation medical examiners, neurologists, and flight safety specialists, it will be of interest to other professionals inside and outside of aviation, including professionals in other safety-critical settings or researchers looking to improve safety in the aviation industry.

Remote Sensing of Aquatic Coastal Ecosystem Processes Laurie L. Richardson, Ellsworth F. LeDrew, 2006-06-11

The aquatic coastal zone is one of the most challenging targets for environmental remote sensing. Properties such as bottom reflectance, spectrally diverse suspended sediments, and phytoplankton communities, diverse benthic communities, and transient events that affect surface reflectance, coastal blooms, runoff, etc., all combine to produce an optical complexity not seen in terrestrial or open ocean systems. Despite this complexity, remote sensing is proving to be an invaluable tool for Case 2 waters. This book presents recent advances in coastal remote sensing with an emphasis on applied science and management Case studies of the operational use of remote sensing in ecosystem studies monitoring and interfacing remote sensing science management are presented Spectral signatures of phytoplankton and suspended sediments are discussed in detail with accompanying discussion of why blue water Case 1 algorithms cannot be applied to Case 2 waters Audience This book is targeted for scientists and managers interested in using remote sensing in the study or management of aquatic coastal environments With only limited discussion of optics and theory presented in the book such researchers might benefit from the detailed presentations of aquatic spectral signatures and to operational management issues While not specifically written for remote sensing scientists it will prove to be a useful reference for this community for the current status of aquatic coastal remote sensing Sensory Organization of
