

Summary

Friction is a force that opposes motion in all contacted surfaces. This will occur with particles (eg vehicles) experiencing its greatest opposing resistance when direction reverses and sliding occurs. Friction follows in the opposite direction from motion, that is not moving - sliding, resistance to slow motion, resistance from moving motion.

1. Calculating Friction

In the illustration above, a force of 5N is applied to an object. Friction is opposing

5 Newton (5N). Hence force

Mean the increased force is 5N, resistance force opposing the moving motion.

Friction:

There is also opposition for sliding motion:

Friction:

$$\text{Friction force is } F_f = \mu F_N \quad \text{Friction force is } F_f = \mu F_N$$

In this equation:

$\mu$  is a constant friction

$F_N$  is normal force (Newton)

$F_f$  is friction force (force opposing motion)

Example: A block is sliding on a surface. Weight of block is 10N. Friction force is 2N. What is the force required to move the block sliding?

$$\begin{aligned} F_f &= 2 \text{ N} \\ F_N &= 10 \text{ N} \\ F_f &= \mu F_N \end{aligned}$$

In addition, block is 2N more to prevent than 10N.

2. Static Friction

Frictional resistance will only occur from movement the following way: When there is a constant force applied to the block with the constant resistance.

- A large push of force was applied to a surface the resistance of motion. The proportional weight of the surface. The resistance of force was not the same as the weight of the surface. Frictional force is proportional to the weight of the surface.
