Teach Eiken Vocabulary:

Teaching EFL Learners Shadowing for Listening Yo Hamada, 2016-07-01 Shadowing an active and highly cognitive technique for EFL listening skill development in which learners track heard speech and vocalize it simultaneously is gradually becoming recognized. However, there remain a lot of mysteries and misunderstandings about it. This book uncovers shadowing in terms of theory and practice. This book cements shadowing as a separate technique from other similar techniques such as Elicited Imitation, Mirroring, and simple repetition, and provides ample empirical data to explain the function of Shadowing. It also elaborates on how Shadowing should be used in terms of materials, procedure, and learners' psychology, which would aid in instructors' use of Shadowing in teaching. A guide on a method effective in improving learners' bottom-up listening skills, this book will certainly prove useful to English Language learners and instructors in their linguistic pursuits.

English Corpora under Japanese Eyes, 2016-08-09 English Corpora under Japanese Eyes is a fine collection of papers written in commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the Japan Association of English Corpus Studies (JAECS). Beginning with the overview of the field by Stig Johansson, an honorary member of the JAECS, the present volume shows the state of art in English corpus studies in Japan and demonstrates the creative uses of corpora in a wide range of research topics, from studies drawing on large-scale general corpora such as the British National Corpus and the Bank of English to studies based on more specific historical literary learner and parallel corpora. The papers incorporated in this anthology are grouped into five sections: 1. Overview of corpus-based studies; 2. Corpus-based studies of contemporary English; 3. Historical and diachronic studies of English; 4. Corpus-based studies in English literature; 5. Corpus and English language teaching. This volume will inspire still further corpus exploitation in the broader field of the humanities.

Trends in Language Assessment Research and Practice Vahid Aryadoust, Janna Fox, 2016-02-29 Despite prodigious developments in the field of language assessment in the Middle East and the Pacific Rim, research and practice in these areas have been underrepresented in mainstream literature. This volume takes a fresh look at language assessment in these regions and provides a unique overview of contemporary language assessment research. In compiling this book, the editors have tapped into the knowledge of language and educational assessment experts whose diversity of perspectives and experience has enriched the focus and scope of language and educational assessment in general and the present volume in particular. The six trends addressed in the 26 chapters that comprise this title consider such contemporary topics as data mining in class assessment and washback. The contributors explore new approaches and techniques in language assessment including advances resulting from multidisciplinary collaboration with researchers in computer science, genetics and neuroscience. The current trends and promising new directions identified in this volume and the research reported here suggest that researchers across the Middle East and the Pacific Rim are playing and will continue to play an important role in advancing the quality, utility and fairness of language testing and assessment practices.

Classroom Practice and Teacher Cognition Nicholas Bradley, 2024-10-26. This collection occupies the middle ground between teachers showcasing their work and academics presenting research that is often situated in irreproducible, uncommon or impractical classroom settings. The work presented here is provided by full-time university language educators who maintain a robust and active research agenda that focuses on their own classroom practice. Whether one wishes to label it under action research, exploratory practice, reflective practice or other, the findings of the research into their own practices and educational contexts are accessible and will resonate strongly with both practicing teachers and academics investigating classroom practice and teacher cognition. All articles are written with the aim of developing practice in a way that is recognisable to teachers and beneficial to their educational efforts. Indeed, recent literature calls for guidance to come from those actively engaged in classroom teaching and who apply sound research methods to the daily contexts lived by teachers and students. from the Eikaiwa Classroom: Moving Beyond “McEnglish” ,2020-01-12 Teacher Narratives from the Eikaiwa Classroom Moving Beyond McEnglish Edited by Daniel Hooper and Natasha Hashimoto This book includes 16 chapters written by current and former eikaiwa English conversation school teachers to illustrate a complexity within the eikaiwa profession that has been thus far largely ignored Through teacher narratives the authors explore the unique and often problematic world of eikaiwa to present a counter narrative to what the editors regard as blanket stereotyping of a multifaceted and evolving teaching context Eikaiwa schools are found in virtually every city and town in Japan They provide conversation and test preparation classes for learners of all ages Those attending eikaiwa may be looking to prepare for an overseas holiday or work placement achieve a required TOEIC score for their company or simply enjoy a new hobby and socialise with people from different cultures and backgrounds Eikaiwa teachers often need to negotiate conflicting demands from students parents management and society at large Furthermore opportunities for professional development are scarce and research on this context is virtually non existent Despite the massive scale of the eikaiwa industry and the varied roles that teachers are required to fulfil within it expatriate and ELT communities have also tended to stigmatise the work of eikaiwa teachers as being simplistic and uniform As a result many former eikaiwa teachers choose to forget their eikaiwa past and the way it shaped them as professionals This volume provides an important opportunity for eikaiwa teachers to share their stories and for the editors to present a coherent and convincing case for the value that the experiences of working in English conversation schools has for our understanding of teaching and learning languages
