Department of Energy, 1980 A Connected Metropolis Maxwell Johnson, 2023-07 In A Connected Metropolis Maxwell Johnson describes Los Angeles's rise in the early twentieth century as catalyzed by a series of upper class debates about the city's connections to the outside world By focusing on specific moments in the city's development when tensions over Los Angeles's connections or lack thereof emerged Johnson ties each movement to two or three contemporary figures who influenced the debates at hand The elites' previous efforts to secure nationwide and global connections for Los Angeles were wildly successful following World War II As a result the city became a landing spot for African American migrants Cambodian and Laotian refugees and Mexican and Central American immigrants Johnson argues that the city's history is more defined by external relationships than previously understood and those relationships have given the history of the city more continuity than originally recognized At the turn of the twentieth century the politics of connection revolved around initiatives to tie Los Angeles to other places both tangibly and metaphorically Elites built tangible connections to secure among other things the water that irrigated the citrus farms of Los Angeles the capital that propelled its businesses and the people who migrated from the Midwest to buy its houses To build metaphorical connections that located the city amid transcontinental and trans Pacific movements elites themselves often transcended nearby borders and pursued connections at will Los Angeles stood as a focal point for elite ambitions a place with a more ambivalent relationship to external connections The true story of Los Angeles's rise lies in the spectacular visions and rambunctious activism of a group of elite men dedicated to transforming a remote frontier town into a global metropolis Protest Policing and Human Rights Michael Smith, 2022-12-30 This book examines protest policing and the toolbox of options available to police commanders in response The right to peacefully protest is intrinsic to democracy and embedded in British history and tradition The police are responsible for managing public order and facilitating peaceful protest and this has not been without criticism On occasions the police have found themselves in opposition to protest groups and there have been incidents of disorder as a result In response the development of Police Liaison Teams in the UK has presented the police with a gateway for dialogue between themselves and those involved in protest Drawing on two contrasting case studies the policing of the badger cull in South West England and an English Defence League EDL march in Liverpool this book explores the experiences of police commanders police liaison officers protesters counterdemonstrators members of local businesses and other interested parties It explores how a dialogical approach with all those engaged in or affected by a protest has assisted the police in balancing human rights and reducing conflict for all An accessible and compelling read this book will appeal to students scholars and practitioners of policing politics criminology sociology human rights and all those interested in how protests are policed Title List of Documents Made Publicly Available U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission,1982
