Question 1 (1 point)
The following table shows the number of hours per week that a sample of 100 students spend studying for their exams. The data is summarized in the following frequency distribution table. What is the mode of the data?

| Hours per week | Frequency |
|----------------|-----------|
| 0-5            | 15        |
| 6-10           | 25        |
| 11-15          | 30        |
| 16-20          | 20        |
| 21-25          | 10        |

Answer 1 (1 point)
The mode of the data is 11-15.

RESEARCHERS have found that the use of a computer program to help students learn to read can improve their reading skills. The program, called "Reading for Understanding," is designed to help students learn to read by using a series of questions and answers. The program is designed to help students learn to read by using a series of questions and answers. The program is designed to help students learn to read by using a series of questions and answers.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in the city of Ankara, Turkey. The study group consisted of 20 children (10 boys and 10 girls) who were randomly selected from the 10-year-old children in the school. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group did not participate in any physical education program, while the experimental group participated in a 12-week training program. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The measurements included maximum heart rate, maximum oxygen consumption, maximum power, and maximum speed. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had significantly higher values for all four measurements at the end of the 12-week period compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged, obese women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The exercise group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program, while the control group remained sedentary. The exercise group showed significant improvements in physical and psychological health compared to the control group. The exercise group showed significant improvements in physical health, including weight, body mass index, waist circumference, and blood pressure. The exercise group also showed significant improvements in psychological health, including self-esteem, body image, and quality of life. The control group showed no significant changes in physical or psychological health. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised exercise program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged, obese women.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 min. The sessions included aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The results showed that the participants experienced significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and flexibility after the 12-week program. The study suggests that a structured exercise program can effectively improve physical fitness in sedentary middle-aged men.
