Dreams and Divination from Byzantium to Baghdad, 400-1000 CE Bronwen Neil, 2021-01-14 Why did dreams matter to Jews Byzantine Christians and Muslims in the first millennium Dreams and Divination from Byzantium to Baghdad 400 1000 CE shows how the ability to interpret dreams universally attracted power and influence in the first millennium In a time when prophetic dreams were viewed as God's intervention in human history male and female prophets wielded was unparalleled power in imperial courts military camps and religious gatherings The three faiths drew on the ancient Near Eastern tradition of dream key manuals which offer an insight into the hopes and fears of ordinary people They melded pagan dream divination with their own scriptural traditions to produce a novel and rich culture of dream interpretation Prophetic dreams enabled communities to understand their past and present circumstances as divinely ordained and helped to bolster the spiritual authority of dreamers and those who had the gift of interpreting their dreams Bronwen Neil takes a gendered approach to the analysis of the common culture of dream interpretation across late antique Jewish Byzantine and Islamic sources to 1000 CE in order to expose the ways in which dreams offered women a unique opportunity to exercise influence The epilogue to the volume reveals why dreams still matter today to many men and women of the monotheist traditions

White Roses in a Dream Marvela Dawnay, 2013-12-09 While writing this sequel to my first book MANipulated Into Fear There Is Always A Pattern I couldn't understand how I was able to live the dark side of life while others perceived me as living a happy normal life I was devastated at the thought of being unemployed now and allowing my relationship with an abuser to affect my family and me and our lives I began to realize that I too had traits patterns and action plans just like Rolf and that there was always a pattern of abuse within families Irrational thoughts entered my mind and I began contemplating ending Rolf's life before he ended mine In the same vein if I didn't murder Rolf I felt the need for me to take my own life to stop living in fear because of Rolf I was hoping that there was a way for me to control my fear when one day I saw white roses and knew that they symbolized new beginnings Several months later I left to go on vacation to Germany and hoped that I would be able to leave my feelings of fear behind Sometimes one never knows what to expect on a trip There were times when I felt like Cinderella had quite an adventure and wished that I had brought my weapon for protection When I returned home something very unexpected happened to me I had a relationship with a man that seemed to be surreal One can only continue to pray for white roses in a dream and hope for a new beginning with their life It doesn't always have to be a dream

Five Stars ForeWord Clarion Review Elizabeth Millard With this sequel Dawnay broadens the focus from getting past her own hurt shame and victimization to helping others Although Dawnay provides more narrative about her life after Rolf writing the first book traveling to Germany tentatively starting a new relationship she focuses on her inner journey from victim to victor Dawnay's ability to detail and draw meaning for others from her painful experiences is strengthened by her straightforward conversational writing style Like a long letter from a friend White Roses In A Dream strikes a personal thoughtful tone For those who suspect they may be dealing with abusive patterns in their own relationships or seeing them among friends or family Dawnay offers simple and powerful advice Read the full review <https://www.forewordmagazine.com/review/white-roses-in-a-dream/> www.forewordreviews.com reviews white roses in a dream Wang Bing's Filmmaking of the China Dream Elena Pollacchi, 2025-10-01 This volume offers an organic discussion of Wang Bing's filmmaking across China's marginal spaces and against the backdrop of the state-sanctioned China Dream. Wang Bing's cinema gives voice to the subaltern. Focusing on contemporary China, his work testifies to a set of issues dealing with inequality, labour, and migration. His internationally awarded documentaries are considered masterpieces with unique aesthetics that bear reference to global film masters. Therefore, this investigation goes beyond the divides between Western and non-Western film traditions and between fiction and documentary cinema. Each chapter takes a different articulation of space, spaces of labour, history, and memory as its entry point, bringing together film and documentary studies, Chinese studies, and globalization studies. This volume benefits from the author's extensive conversations with Wang Bing and insider observations of film production and the film festival circuit.
