THAI

At the far southern end of the Valencia Corridor, the restaurant feels like it is much farther away, transporting you to Bangkok or Chiang Mai. Wooden animal carvings and tropical plants fill the dusty pink room. The menu is carefully crafted and innovative cuisine of Chef Srithong. He grew up in the northern Thai city of Chiang Mai, where influences were the delicious home cooking and regional food and the eighteen years he spent sailing and working on the Thai Navy. His menu is a combination of Thai dishes, yum koong (hot and spicy shrimp soup), and green curry food from his childhood like roti mornahot (a traditional regional dish rarely found in restaurants) and khao soi, a special noodle dish from Chiang Mai. Chef Srithong has created himself like Pacific Northwest. Suriya Emerald Noodles (homemade noodles with dumplings). Influences from his travels can be seen in such dishes as the popular Money Bags appetizer—prawns and dumplings in crispy rice wrappers and tied with green onion rings.

Thai House Express

Tenderloin
 901 Larkin Street, at Geary Street
 (415) 441-2248
 Open till 2:00 A.M.
 $

Thai House Express is a regular hangout for local chefs and foodies. They come in for two reasons: They serve less common Thai dishes, and they're open until 2:00 A.M. The Tenderloin restaurant is trendier than one would imagine. The space is airy, with high ceilings and modern decor. Servers are sassy and efficient. Among the uncommon dishes, there's the braised pork with greens, a meltingly tender slow-cooked pork shank with spices such as galangal and star anise. It is one of the best and a comforting respite from the rest of the very spicy

Thai dishes include kumot gao nam pa, which is a red curry base made with lots of lemongrass and fish that has the texture of a bouillabaisse. It comes with fish balls and is served with rice noodles, bean sprouts, and basil. The fried rice with fermented pork sausage or dry fermented fish is good. Other good choices are the yellow curry with chicken and green (a milder curry that allows the flavors of ginger and lemongrass to shine through) and the green papaya salad with dry salted crab (although it can be an acquired taste). Noodle dishes are another strong point. Beer and wine are served, but because of the heat of the food, ordering a Thai iced tea is the way to go.

This Organic Life Joan Dye Gussow,2002-10-01 Joan Dye Gussow is an extraordinarily ordinary woman She lives in a home not unlike the average home in a neighborhood that is more or less typically suburban What sets her apart from the rest of us is that she thinks more deeply and in more eloquent detail about food In sharing her ponderings she sets a delightful example for those of us who seek the healthiest most pleasurable lifestyle within an environment determined to propel us in the opposite direction Joan is a suburbanite with a green thumb with a feisty defiant spirit and a relentlessly positive outlook At the heart of This Organic Life is the premise that locally grown food eaten in season makes sense economically ecologically and gastronomically Transporting produce to New York from California not to mention Central and South America Australia or Europe consumes more energy in transit than it yields in calories It costs 435 fossil fuel calories to fly a 5 calorie strawberry from California to New York Add in the deleterious effects of agribusiness such as the endless cycle of pesticide herbicide and chemical fertilizers the loss of topsoil from erosion of over tilled croplands depleted aquifers and soil salinization from over irrigation and the arguments in favor of this organic life become overwhelmingly convincing Joan s story is funny and fiery as she points out the absurdities we have unthinkingly come to accept You won t find an electric can opener in this woman s house In fact you probably won t find many cans as Joan has discovered ways to nourish herself literally and spiritually from her own backyard If you are looking for a tale of courage and independence in a setting that is entirely familiar read her story
