Water

Water is a substance that exists in three states: solid, liquid, and gas. First, it is a solid. When it is a solid, it is ice. Ice is a hard, white substance that can be frozen. It can change its state when you melt it, or it can freeze, or steam when it is a gas. Every living thing and us, needs water to survive. It is important for life. Water is also a lot of fun. It can splash in puddles or when you drop it, or it can change its state. It's interesting. Water cannot be compressed. It takes up space that doesn't change. Interestingly, water cannot be compressed. You can find it in a glass. One more fun thing about water is that it can see through it.
