Sons Of Sin:

Sons of Sin Taino De La Ghetto, Thomas Freeman, 2008-11-03 In America's most dangerous city there's only two ways to survive one is by the grace of God the other is with a gun and a strong team Taino Ramirez chose the second option the same one his father uncles and older cousins chose They say it's a hood everywhere which might be true but none of them are quite like Camden New Jersey While most hoods are part of a larger city center Camden is just all hood No nice part just areas that are a little more tolerable than others In the early 80s while crack cocaine was sweeping the nation Camden had already been swept under Camden North Camden in particular was a war zone during these times Most weren't brave enough to venture to this part of the city but for some there was no choice this was home Taino was one of the people that called North Camden home until he went down for murder at the young age of 17 While incarcerated he made a lot of changes mentally but in actuality all he knew was the game While in prison he began hearing that his nephew Juan Ramirez Jay and his best friend Quan have been in the streets dabbling in the drug game He constantly tells Jay about the dangers of the streets but in the back of his mind he feels he has one more run in him and that Jay and Quan could be vital assets if schooled right This time he wants to do it big and then go legit but he keeps all these ideas to himself The Sons of Sin is a story of trust love loyalty deceit and double crossing It's a ghetto love story filled with drama and compassion it also gives an accurate view of what's going on in the hood It's a lesson of how the game is not loyal to anyone it eats up families and doesn't care who it destroys It's a story about growing up too fast and chasing illusions It's about the youth growing up in the nation's poorest city where jobs and role models are few and far between It's about the youth trying to survive but in all the wrong ways
