Wharton's The Greater Inclination is a collection of stories exploring the tension between love art and social constraint. In the opening tale a young literary admirer named Danyers becomes captivated by Mrs Anerton once known as Sylvia the muse behind the famous poet Vincent Rendle's sonnets. Having long idealized her through poetry Danyers yearns to meet her and uncover the truth behind the myth. Mrs Anerton now widowed and reclusive remains distant yet intriguing. The story captures the delicate balance between artistic reverence and the desire for personal connection.
