Johnson, Jared Johnson, 2012 Background The context is the new Texas STAAR end of course testing program Purpose The authors developed a logistic regression model to predict who would pass or fail the new Texas chemistry STAAR end of course exam Setting Robert E Lee High School 5A with an enrollment of 2700 students Tyler Texas Date of the study was the 2011 2012 academic year Study Sample A sample of n 100 students from the author's chemistry classes 32 high school sophomores and 68 high school juniors Intervention Developed a binary logistic regression prediction model no control group applicable Research Design Statistical Modeling Control or Comparison Condition Control or comparison group not applicable for the study Data Collection and Analysis The students n 100 STAAR test scores from the new Texas end of course chemistry pilot test were analyzed in the 2011 2012 school year Variables included in the logistic regression model were as follows Students previous years science TAKS test scores raw data science TAKS scores and STAAR end of course scores coded pass 1 or fail 0 as categorical variables and students grade level coded sophomore 0 or junior 1 as categorical variables Findings A binary logistic regression analysis was performed using the new Texas end of course pilot chemistry STAAR test scores as the dependent variable DV and the previous year's science TAKS scores and grade level as predictor variables A total of n 100 cases were analyzed and the full model was significantly reliable chi square 102.568 df 2 p less than 0.000 This model accounted for between 64.1% and 85.9% of the variance in STAAR status with 92.9% of the students passing the STAAR test successfully predicted and 93.2% of students failing the STAAR test successfully predicted. Overall 93.0% of the predictions were correct. The Wald statistic showed that the TAKS raw score reliably predicted passing or failing the STAAR end of course chemistry test.
