The Geography of Thought Richard E. Nisbett, 2003 When Richard Nisbett showed an animated underwater scene to his American students they zeroed in on a big fish swimming among smaller fish Japanese subjects on the other hand made observations about the background environment and the different sightings are a clue to profound underlying cognitive differences between Westerners and East Asians As Professor Nisbett shows in The Geography of Thought people actually think and even see the world differently because of differing ecologies social structures philosophies and educational systems that date back to ancient Greece and China and that have survived into the modern world As a result East Asian thought is holistic drawn to the perceptual field as a whole and to relations among objects and events within that field By comparison to Western modes of reasoning East Asian thought relies far less on categories or on formal logic it is fundamentally dialectic seeking a middle way between opposing thoughts By contrast Westerners focus on salient objects or people use attributes to assign them to categories and apply rules of formal logic to understand their behavior
