Perpetually Cool Anthony B. Chan, 2007-02-08 Anna May Wong was an extraordinary Asian American woman who became the country s most famous film actress of Chinese descent From small parts in silent films to starring roles in Hollywood and across the Atlantic Wong made an impression on audiences of all persuasions In Perpetually

Cool Anthony Chan takes the reader on a compelling journey through Wong's early years in Los Angeles and her first Hollywood pictures. Chan also examines the scope and nature of race, gender, and power and their impact on Wong's personal growth as a Chinese American. Perpetually Cool is not only the captivating story of a cinematic career but also of roots and identity as it recounts Wong's desire to connect with her heritage in the United States and in China. Chan provides extensive textual analyses of Wong's signature films, especially The Toll of the Sea (1922), The Thief of Bagdad (1924) with Douglas Fairbanks, and her most famous role as Hui Fei in Shanghai Express (1932) opposite Marlene Dietrich. Perpetually Cool is a fitting tribute to the influence of this Chinese American icon.

Envisioning Asia Jeanette Roan, 2010-05-07 Whereas some other scholars read selected films mainly to illustrate political arguments, Roan never loses sight of the particularities of film as a distinctive cultural form and practice. Her drive to see cinema as a mechanism of American orientalism results in not just a textual analysis of these films but also a history of their material production and distribution. Josephine Lee, University of Minnesota. Envisioning Asia offers an exciting new contribution to our understandings of the historical developments of American Orientalism. Jeannette Roan deftly situates changing cinematic technologies within the context of U.S. imperial agendas in this richly nuanced analysis of shooting on location in Asia in early 20th-century American cinema. Wendy Kozol, Oberlin College. Through her vivid illustration of the role of American cinema in the material, visual, and ideological production of Asia, Jeanette Roan takes the reader on a journey to Asia through a very different route from the virtual travel taken by the viewers of the films she discusses. Mari Yoshihara, University of Hawai'i at Manoa. The birth of cinema coincides with the beginnings of U.S. expansion overseas, and the classic Hollywood era coincides with the rise of the United States as a global superpower. In Envisioning Asia, Jeanette Roan argues that throughout this period, the cinema's function as a form of virtual travel, coupled with its purported authenticity, served to advance America's shifting interests in Asia. Its ability to fulfill this imperial role depended, however, not only on the cinematic representations themselves but on the marketing of the films, production histories, and in particular, their use of Asian locations. Roan demonstrates this point in relation to a wide range of productions, offering an engaging and useful survey of a largely neglected body of film. Not only that, but by focusing on the material practices involved in shooting films on location—that is, the actual travels, negotiations, and labor of making a film—she moves beyond formal analysis to produce a richly detailed history of American interests, attitudes, and cultural practices during the first half of the twentieth century. Jeanette Roan is Adjunct Professor of Visual Studies at California College of the Arts and author of Exotic Explorations: Travels to Asia and the Pacific in Early Cinema. In Recollecting Early Asian America: Essays in Cultural History (2002), Cover art: Publicity still, Tokyo File (1912), Dorrell McGowan and Stuart McGowan, 1951. The accompanying text reads: "Hundreds of spectators gather on the sidelines as technicians prepare to photograph a parade scene in Tokyo." File 1212, a Breakston McGowan Production, filmed in Japan for RKO Radio distribution.
