Samuels, 2013-04-15 On March 11 2011 Japan was struck by the shockwaves of a 9.0 magnitude undersea earthquake originating less than 50 miles off its eastern coastline The most powerful earthquake to have hit Japan in recorded history it produced a devastating tsunami with waves reaching heights of over 130 feet that in turn caused an unprecedented multireactor meltdown at Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant This triple catastrophe claimed almost 20 000 lives destroyed whole towns and will ultimately cost hundreds of billions of dollars for reconstruction In 3.11 Richard Samuels offers the first broad scholarly assessment of the disaster's impact on Japan's government and society The events of March 2011 occurred after two decades of social and economic malaise as well as considerable political and administrative dysfunction at both the national and local levels and resulted in national soul searching Political reformers saw in the tragedy cause for hope an opportunity for Japan to remake itself Samuels explores Japan's post earthquake actions in three key sectors national security energy policy and local governance For some reformers 3.11 was a warning for Japan to overhaul its priorities and political processes For others it was a once in a millennium event they cautioned that while national policy could be improved dramatic changes would be counterproductive Still others declared that the catastrophe demonstrated the need to return to an idealized past and rebuild what has been lost to modernity and globalization Samuels chronicles the battles among these perspectives and analyzes various attempts to mobilize popular support by political entrepreneurs who repeatedly invoked three powerfully affective themes leadership community and vulnerability Assessing reformers successes and failures as they used the catastrophe to push their particular agendas and by examining the earthquake and its aftermath alongside prior disasters in Japan China and the United States
