

The background of the entire cover is a misty, dark forest. Tall, thin trees with bare branches are visible in the background. The ground is covered in a thick layer of fallen red and orange leaves. In the lower right foreground, a young girl is seen from behind, walking away from the viewer into the forest. She is wearing a long, dark green hooded coat. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and slightly ominous.

Hough,1981 Abstract The impact of low intensity prescribed fires on slash pine saw palmetto gallberry understory and forest floor nutrients was estimated from measurements before and after burning Highly significant correlations existed between weight loss of these fuel components and the weight loss of several elements Energy loss was also highly correlated with forest floor and understory weight loss The data also indicate that annual or biennial burns do not reduce themacronutrients in the soil surface layer but in fact increase them and that even though a significant amount of N 110kg ha may be lost by burning a 5 year fuel accumulation there still is 160 kg ha of N in the ash and residue following the fire as well as about 700 kg ha in the upper 10 cm of the soil profile The United States Catalog; Books in Print
