The Hunters of the Hills Joseph A. Altsheler, 2013-04-17 A canoe containing two boys and a man was moving slowly on one of the little lakes in the great northern wilderness of what is now the State of New York The water a brilliant blue under skies of the same intense sapphire tint rippled away gently on either side of the prow or rose in heaps of glittering bubbles as the paddles were lifted for a new stroke Vast masses of dense foliage in the tender green of early spring crowned the high banks of the lake on every side The eye found no break anywhere Only the pink or delicate red of a wild flower just bursting into bloom varied the solid expanse of emerald walls and save for the canoe and a bird of prey darting in a streak of silver for a fish the surface of the water was lone and silent The three who used the paddles were individual and unlike none of them bearing any resemblance to the other two The man sat in the stern He was of middle years built very powerfully and with muscles and sinews developed to an amazing degree His face in childhood quite fair had been burned almost as brown as that of an Indian by long exposure He was clothed wholly in tanned deerskin adorned with many little colored beads A hatchet and knife were in the broad belt at his waist and a long rifle lay at his feet His face was fine and open and he would have been noticed anywhere But the eyes of the curious would surely have rested first upon the two youths with him

took a just pride It was gayer and brighter than the inns of Albany and New York and again Robert found his spirit responding to it A fire of light wood that blazed and sparkled merrily burned in a huge stone fireplace at the end of the room and its grateful warmth entered into Robert s blood He suddenly felt a great exaltation He was glad to be there He was glad that Tayoga and Willet were with him He was glad that they had encountered dangers on their journey because they had won a triumph in overcoming them and by the very act of victory they had increased their own strength and confidence His sensitive imaginative nature easily kindled to supreme efforts thrilled with the thoughts of the great deeds they might do His pleasure in the company and the atmosphere increased Everything about him made a strong appeal to good taste At the end of the room opposite the fireplace stood a vast sideboard upon which china and glass arranged in harmonious groups shone and glittered The broad shelves or niches in the walls held much cut glass which now and then threw back from many facets the ruddy light of the fire Before sitting down they had dipped their hands in a basin of white china filled with water and standing beside the door and that too had pleased Robert s fastidious taste At their table each of the three found an immaculate white napkin a large white china plate and goblet knife fork and spoon all of silver polished to the last degree Again Robert s nature responded and he looked at himself in his fine dress in The Hunters of the Hills Joseph Alexander Altsheler Joseph Altsheler,2017-07-03 The Hunters of the Hills is presented here in a high quality paperback edition This popular classic work by Joseph A Joseph Alexander Altsheler is in the English language and may not include graphics or images from the original edition If you enjoy the works of Joseph A Joseph Alexander Altsheler then we highly recommend this publication for your book collection The Hunters of the Hills Joseph Alexander Altsheler,2013-12 This is a reproduction of a book published before 1923 This book may have occasional imperfections such as missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc that were either part of the original artifact or were introduced by the scanning process We believe this work is culturally important and despite the imperfections have elected to bring it back into print as part of our continuing commitment to the preservation of printed works worldwide We appreciate your understanding of the imperfections in the preservation process and hope you enjoy this valuable book The below data was compiled from various identification fields in the bibliographic record of this title This data is provided as an additional tool in helping to ensure edition identification The Hunters Of The Hills A Story Of The Great French And Indian War Joseph Alexander Altsheler Appleton 1920 United States The Hunters of the Hills Joseph A.
