The Perfect Vagina

Lindy McDougall,2021-05-04 In the West a specific ideal for female genitalia has emerged one of absence a clean slit attained through the removal of pubic hair and increasingly through female genital cosmetic surgery known as FGCS In The Perfect Vagina Cosmetic Surgery in the Twenty First Century Lindy McDougall provides an ethnographic account of women who choose FGCS in Australia and the physicians who perform these procedures both in Australia and globally while also examining the environment in which surgeons and women come together Physicians have a vested interest in establishing this surgery as valid medical intervention despite majority medical opinion explicitly acknowledging that a wide range of genital variation is normal McDougall offers a nuanced picture of why and how these procedures are performed and draws parallels between FGCS and anthropological discussions of female genital circumcision cutting Using the neologism biomagical she argues that cosmetic surgery functions as both ritual and sacrifice due to its promise of transformation while simultaneously submitting the body to the risks and pain of surgery thus exposing biomedicine as an increasingly cultural and commercial pursuit The Perfect Vagina highlights the complexities involved with FGCS its role in Western beauty culture and the creation and control of body image in countries where self care is valorized and medicine is increasingly harnessed for enhancement as well as health

Information Services and Digital Literacy Isto Huvila, 2012-10-04 Despite new technologies people do not always find information with ease Do people still need help in finding the information they need and if so why What can be made easier with new tools and techniques Information Services and Digital Literacy is about the role of information services and digital literacies in the age of the social web This title provides an alternative perspective for understanding information services and digital literacy and argues that a central problem in the age of the social web and the culture of participation is that we do not know the premises of how we know and how ways of interacting with information affect our actions and their outcomes Information seeking is always a question of crossing and expanding boundaries between our earlier experiences and the unknown We may not yet be well enough acquainted with the landscape of digital information to understand how we know where the boundaries to our knowledge lie how to cross them and what consequences our actions may have Presents a new approach for understanding how information services help and hinder people in becoming informed Provides an overview of how to conceptualize information services and digital literacy Provides a model for developing new types of library and information service

Law and Society Approaches to Cyberspace Paul Schiff Berman, 2017-11-28 During the past decade the rise of online communication has proven to be particularly fertile ground for academic exploration at the intersection of law and society Scholars have considered how best to apply existing law to new technological problems but they also have returned to first principles considering fundamental questions about what law is how it is formed and its relation to cultural and technological change This collection brings together many of these seminal works which variously seek to interrogate assumptions about the nature of communication knowledge invention information sovereignty identity and community From the use of metaphor in legal opinions about the internet to the challenges posed by globalization and deterritorialization to the potential utility of online governance models to debates about copyright free expression and privacy this collection offers an invaluable introduction to cutting edge ideas about law and society in an online era In addition the introductory essay both situates this work within the trajectory of law and society scholarship and summarizes the major fault lines in ongoing policy debates about the regulation of online activity
