зажигания

The image is a technical line drawing of a mechanical assembly, likely a distributor or timing mechanism. It features two main curved components, possibly rotors or contact fingers, which are part of a larger housing. A bundle of wires, referred to as a 'wire harness' (Жгут проводов), is shown entering the assembly from the bottom left. The wires are bundled together and then branch out to connect with various electrical components within the mechanism. The drawing is a black and white line art, typical of technical manuals. The text is in Russian and describes the purpose of the wire harness: 'for checking the ignition advance angle' (для проверки угла опережения зажигания).
