Staines, 2016-12-05 Author John Staines here argues that sixteenth and seventeenth century writers in England Scotland and France wrote tragedies of the Queen of Scots royal heroine or tyrant martyr or whore in order to move their audiences towards political action by shaping and directing the passions generated by the spectacle of her fall In following the retellings of her history from her lifetime through the revolutions and political experiments of the seventeenth century this study identifies two basic literary traditions of her tragedy one conservative sentimental and royalist the other radical skeptical and republican Staines provides new readings of Spenser and Milton as well as of early modern dramatists to compile a comprehensive study of the writings about this important historical and literary figure He charts developments in public rhetoric and political writing from the Elizabethan period through the Restoration using the emotional representations of the life of this tragic woman and queen to explore early modern experiments in addressing and moving a public audience By exploring the writing and rewriting of the tragic histories of the Queen of Scots this book reveals the importance of literature as a force in the redefinition of British political life between 1560 and 1690 The Cry of Nature Stephen F. E. de Haas, 1928 Language in Literature Jonathan Locke

Hart, 2024-10-15 Language in Literature examines the overlap and blurring boundaries of English comparative and world poetry and literature. Questions of language, literature, translation, and creative writing are addressed as befitting an author who is a poet, literary scholar, and historian. The book begins with metaphor, which Aristotle thought in Poetics was the key gift of the poet, and discusses it in theory and practice. It moves from the identity of metaphor to identity in translation and culture. It examines poetry in a comparative and world context; it looks at image and text; it explores literature and culture in the Cold War; it explores the role of the poet and scholar in translating poetry East and West; it places creative writing in theory and practice in context East and West; it concludes by summing up and suggesting implications of creation in language, translating and interpreting, and its expression in literature, especially in poetry.
