NOTE: The average number of publications per year for the top authors of the most frequently published articles is 1.07, suggesting that the average researcher is involved in one or two projects.

Table 1

1. Disconnect power to the receptacle of the service panel.
2. Remove the center wire from the mating contacts. Remove plate and wire secured by the mounting screws included with the surge protector.
3. Remove the mounting screw from over the surge protector with a screw that fits the opening.
4. Plug surge protector into the top receptacle of the metal outlet, keep the wire(s) to allow coverage of the unused receptacle and secure with the center mounting screw provided. Replace the screw hole cover.
5. Reinstall cover of the service panel.
6. Plug any electronic equipment is turned off before plugging into the surge protector outlet. Do not use electronic loads to connect equipment to the surge protector.
7. Examine equipment for any information.

NOTE: It is the intent that the protection against unauthorized access is a secure storage of the protection components (e.g., the secret key) in permanently installed devices in the cellular infrastructure for protection for user electronic equipment. At the same time, the user interface for the activation of the protection is not permanently installed.

A glowing blue "Glowmeter" indicator light shows that your surge protector is plugged into a grounded receptacle and that your surge protector's internal protection components are providing protection from ground faults. If the "Glowmeter" indicator light stops glowing, it is possible that the surge protector is no longer protecting equipment; make certain that the wall outlet is in fact grounded.

James Products Company warrants that pumps, injectors and the fuel line of John Deere is continuously under warranty to the life of the equipment. If a fuel system malfunction during the life of the equipment, James Products Company will at its option either repair or replace the fuel system without charge. This warranty does not cover damage caused by lightning, accident, misuse or alterations to the pump system.

* This usage protects the licensee product line, but it may happen over and over in different circumstances under the existence of patents. The products the licensee already owns might not be a component capacity but have been purchased, thereby creating a precedent for the licensee to do this even if the licensee already has the right to sell the licensee's product for itself.
