University Of Limpopo Student Selfcheck:

Social Work in India Bishnu Mohan Dash, Mithilesh Kumar, Siddheshwar Shukla, 2020-01-01 The present book is an attempt to decolonize the colonial legacy and professional imperialism in Social Work Education and has presented various Swadeshi indigenous perspectives and approaches relevant for social work education. The book has tried to incorporate the significant contributions and developmental models propounded by the great Indian thinkers particularly Swami Vivekananda, Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, Mahatma Gandhi, Vinoba Bhave, and Nanaji Deshmukh, which is highly relevant in the reconstruction of Indian Society. The book will be extremely relevant for the students of social work, sociology, rural development, development studies, and allied social science disciplines at Bachelors and Masters level. Adjustment Experiences and Coping Strategies of First-year Students at the University of Limpopo (Turfloop Campus) Reyagalaletsa Felicity Tom, 2015

Optimizing Mental Health for Student Success at University Sarah K. Davis, 2020 Mental health is one of the biggest issues facing governments around the globe. Keyes (2013) Mental health is a state of well-being wherein individuals realize their potential, cope with normal life stressors, work productively, and contribute to society. World Health Organization (2014) Findings from the American College Health Assessment survey reveal that the vast majority of postsecondary students in Canada and the United States report feeling inundated and exhausted by their academic work and experiencing levels of stress and anxiety compromising physical and mental health, academic learning, and personal success. ACHA (2019) Self-regulated learning (SRL) is a key component of student success at university; however, despite the large body of research establishing the role of SRL in student success at university, there is a paucity of research on mental health and SRL at university. To date, mental health and SRL have been underexamined as dynamic processes that develop over time as highly situated metacognitive processes. The purpose of this multi-paper dissertation was twofold: a) to examine the interplay between self-regulated learning and mental health in student success at university, and b) to explore a variety of methods and analyses examining this interplay. Davis and Hadwin (2019) examined psychological well-being (PWB) and SRL and how they differ between groups of students with different levels of within-person PWB during an academic semester of a learning-to-learn course. Davis, Milford, and MacDonald (2019) used multi-level modelling to further examine the associations over time between students' PWB and academic engagement, goal attainment, goal satisfaction, and rating of mental health and well-being challenge. Finally, Davis, Rostampour, Hadwin, and Rush (2020) built on the findings of Papers 1 and 2 by using a case study approach to examine mental health and adaptive regulation exhibited by two contrasting groups of students: i.e., the high mental health group and the low mental health group in a university learning-to-learn course. There were five main findings from the studies in this dissertation: First, there is a positive relation between PWB and SRL. Second, mental health is a condition and product affecting learning. Third, students' mental health affects metacognitive standards and is a target of learning goals. Fourth, students' mental health affects their engagement in adaptive regulation of learning. Fifth, including mental health in online SRL diary tools may benefit all students Finally the main findings from this dissertation provide two directions for future research a considering the interplay of mental health SRL as a heuristic process fueled by metacognition where students take an active role experiment and consider feedback in their learning and b situating mental health within metacognitive SRL interventions
