Study Guide For California Custodial Job:

The Columbia Guide to Social Work Writing Warren J. Green, Barbara Levy Simon, 2012 Social work practitioners write for a variety of publications and they are expected to show fluency in a number of related fields. Whether the target is a course instructor, scholarly journal, fellowship organization or general news outlet, social workers must be clear, persuasive and comprehensive in their writing especially on provocative subjects. This first of its kind guide features top scholars and educators providing a much needed introduction to social work writing and scholarship. Foregrounding the process of social work writing, the coeditors particularly emphasize how to think about and approach one's subject in a productive manner. The guide begins with an overview of social work writing from the 1880s to the present and then follows with ideal strategies for academic paper writing, social work journal writing and social work research writing. A section on applied professional writing addresses student composition in field education, writing for and about clinical practice, the effective communication of policy information to diverse audiences, program and proposal development, advocacy and administrative writing. The concluding section focuses on specific fields of practice including writing on child and family welfare, contemporary social issues, aging and intervention in global contexts. Grounding their essays in systematic observations, induction and deduction and a wealth of real world examples, the contributors describe the conceptualization, development and presentation of social work writing in ways that better secure its power and relevance.

Parental Alienation Jean Mercer, Margaret Drew, 2021-12-02 This book addresses the concept of parental alienation—the belief that when a child of divorced parents avoids one parent it may be because the preferred parent has persuaded the child to do this. It argues against the unquestioning use of parental alienation concepts in child custody conflicts. Increasing use of this concept in family courts has led at times to placement of children with abusive or violent parents, damage to the lives of preferred parents and the use of treatments that have not been shown to be safe or effective. The 13 chapters cover the history and theory of parental alienation principles and practices. Methodological and research issues are considered and diagnostic and treatment methods associated with parental alienation beliefs as well as those recommended by research and ethical evidence are analyzed. The connections of parental alienation with gender and domestic violence issues are discussed as are the experiences of individuals who have experienced parental alienation treatments. The book argues that parental alienation principles and practices should be avoided by family courts in the best interests of children in custody disputes. This book will be useful reading for lawyers, judges, children's services workers, including social workers, child protection court workers and mental health professionals involved in child custody decisions.
