The American Psychiatric Association Practice Guidelines for the Psychiatric Evaluation of Adults, Third Edition American Psychiatric Association, 2015-07-29 Since the publication of the Institute of Medicine IOM report Clinical Practice Guidelines We Can Trust in 2011 there has been an increasing emphasis on assuring that clinical practice guidelines are trustworthy developed in a transparent fashion and based on a systematic review of the available research evidence To align with the IOM recommendations and to meet the new requirements for inclusion of a guideline in the National Guidelines Clearinghouse of the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality AHRQ American Psychiatric Association APA has adopted a new process for practice guideline development Under this new process APA s practice guidelines also seek to provide better clinical utility and usability Rather than a broad overview of treatment for a disorder new practice guidelines focus on a set of discrete clinical questions of relevance to an overarching subject area A systematic review of evidence is conducted to address these clinical questions and involves a detailed assessment of individual studies The quality of the overall body of evidence is also rated and is summarized in the practice guideline With the new process recommendations are determined by weighing potential benefits and harms of an intervention in a specific clinical context Clear concise and actionable recommendation statements help clinicians to incorporate recommendations into clinical practice with the goal of improving quality of care The new practice guideline format is also designed to be more user friendly by dividing information into modules on specific clinical questions Each module has a consistent organization which will assist users in finding clinically useful and relevant information quickly and easily This new edition of the practice guidelines on psychiatric evaluation for adults is the first set of the APA's guidelines developed under the new guideline development process. These guidelines address the following nine topics in the context of an initial psychiatric evaluation: review of psychiatric symptoms, trauma history and treatment history, substance use assessment, assessment of suicide risk, assessment for risk of aggressive behaviors, assessment of cultural factors, assessment of medical health, quantitative assessment, involvement of the patient in treatment decision making, and documentation of the psychiatric evaluation. Each guideline recommends or suggests topics to include during an initial psychiatric evaluation. Findings from an expert opinion survey have also been taken into consideration in making recommendations or suggestions. In addition to reviewing the available evidence on psychiatry evaluation, each guideline also provides guidance to clinicians on implementing these recommendations to enhance patient care.

How to Manage Training Carolyn D. Nilson, 2003. Annotation. Now in a thoroughly updated third edition, this classic training guide shows readers how to build and maintain a successful, cost-effective organizational learning program. This is the training manager's ultimate answer book and set of tools for creating, developing, and managing the training function.

Pediatric Critical Care Steven E. Lucking, Frank A. Maffei, Robert F. Tamburro, Arno Zaritsky, 2021-03-15. This extensively updated textbook is a comprehensive study guide that covers pediatric critical care principles and specific disease entities commonly encountered by the pediatric critical care medicine (PCCM) practitioner. Pathophysiologic aspects unique to the pediatric patient are emphasized. The first edition has become a highly utilized text for pediatric critical care fellows. The second edition will prove even more valuable to the fellow in training and indeed to any clinical pediatric intensivist. In addition to updating the chapters from the previous edition, there are new chapters on topics such as central nervous system structure and function, palliative care, child abuse, and practical biostatistics. Pediatric Critical Care Text and Study Guide is an invaluable clinically focused resource for PCCM practitioners. Allowing for concise reading on specific topics, this book acts as both text and study guide, covering advanced physiology, pathophysiology, diagnostic considerations, and treatment approaches that should be mastered by the higher-level PCCM practitioner. The large number of illustrations complements the text in each chapter, that also includes key references and case-oriented questions that help reinforce important ideas learned in the chapter.

Wildfire Risk Wade E. Professor Martin, Carol Professor Raish, Brian Professor Kent, 2010-09-30. The continuing encroachment of human settlements into fire-prone areas and extreme fire seasons in recent years make it urgent that we better understand both the physical and human dimensions of managing the risk from wildfire. Wildfire Risk follows from our awareness that increasing public knowledge about wildfire hazard does not necessarily lead to appropriate risk reduction behavior Drawing heavily upon health and risk communication and risk modeling the authors advance our understanding of how individuals and communities respond to wildfire hazard They present results of original research on the social economic and psychological factors in responses to risk discuss how outreach and education can influence behavior and consider differences among ethnic racial groups and between genders with regard to values views and attitudes about wildfire risk They explore the role of public participation in risk assessment and mitigation as well as in planning for evacuation and recovery after fire Wildfire Risk concludes with a dedicated section on risk modeling with perspectives from decision sciences geography operations research psychology experimental economics and other social sciences

Advances in Virtual Agents and Affective Computing for the Understanding and Remediation of Social Cognitive Disorders Eric Brunet-Gouet, Ali Oker, Jean-Claude Martin, Ouriel Grynszpan, Philip L. Jackson, 2016-03-02

Advances in modern sciences occur thanks to within fields discoveries as well as confrontation of concepts and methods from separated sometimes distant domains of knowledge For instance the fields of psychology and psychopathology benefited from accumulated contributions from cognitive neurosciences which in turn received insights from molecular chemistry cellular biology physics neuroimaging statistics and computer sciences data processing etc From the results of these researches one can argue that among the numerous cognitive phenomena supposedly involved in the emergence the human intelligence and organized behavior some of them are specific to the social nature of our phylogenetic order Scientific reductionism allowed to divide the social cognitive system into several components i e emotion processing and regulation mental state inference theory of mind agency etc New paradigms were progressively designed to investigate these processes within highly controlled laboratory settings Moreover the related constructs were successful at better understanding psychopathological conditions such as autism and schizophrenia with partial relationships with illness outcomes Here we would like to outline the parallel development of concepts in social neurosciences and in other domains such as computer science affective computing virtual reality development and even hardware technologies While several researchers in neurosciences pointed out the necessity to consider naturalistic social cognition Zaki and Ochsner Ann N Y Acad Sci 1167 16 30 2009 the second person perspective Schilbach et al Behav Brain Sci 36 4 393 414 2013 and reciprocity de Bruin et al Front Hum Neurosci 6 151 2012 both computer and software developments allowed more and more realistic real time models of our environment and of virtual humans capable of some interaction with users As noted at the very beginning of this editorial a new convergence between scientific disciplines might occur from which it is tricky to predict the outcomes in terms of new concepts methods and uses Although this convergence is motivated by the intuition that it fits well ongoing societal changes increasing social demands on computer technologies augmenting funding it comes with several difficulties for which the current Frontiers in topic strives to bring some positive answers and to provide both theoretical arguments and experimental examples The first issue is about concepts and vocabulary as the contributions described in the following are authored by neuroscientists computer scientists psychopathologists etc A special attention was given during the reviewing process to stay as close as possible to the publication standards in psychological and health sciences and to avoid purely technical descriptions The second problem

concerns methods more complex computerized interaction models results in unpredictable and poorly controlled experiments In other words the assets of naturalistic paradigms may be alleviated by the difficulty to match results between subjects populations conditions Of course this practical question is extremely important for investigating pathologies that are associated with profoundly divergent behavioral patterns Some of the contributions of this topic provide description of strategies that allowed to solve these difficulties at least partially The last issue is about heterogeneity of the objectives of the researches presented here While selection criteria focused on the use of innovative technologies to assess or improve social cognition the fields of application of this approach were quite unexpected In an attempt to organize the contributions three directions of research can be identified 1 how innovation in methods might improve understanding and assessment of social cognition disorders or pathology 2 within the framework of cognitive behavioral psychotherapies CBT how should we consider the use of virtual reality or augmented reality 3 which are the benefits of these techniques for investigating severe mental disorders schizophrenia or autism and performing cognitive training The first challenging question is insightfully raised in the contribution of Timmermans and Schilbach 2014 giving orientations for investigating alterations of social interaction in psychiatric disorders by the use of dual interactive eye tracking with virtual anthropomorphic avatars Joyal Jacob and collaborators 2014 bring concurrent and construct validities of a newly developed set of virtual faces expressing six fundamental emotions The relevance of virtual reality was exemplified with two contributions focusing on anxiety related phenomena Jackson et al 2015 describe a new environment allowing to investigate empathy for dynamic FACS coded facial expressions including pain Based on a systematic investigation of the impact of social stimuli modalities visual auditory Ruch and collaborators are able to characterize the specificity of the interpretation of laughter in people with gelotophobia 2014 On the issue of social anxiety Aymerich Franch et al 2014 presented two studies in which public speaking anxiety has been correlated with avatars similarity of participants self representations The second issue focuses on how advances in virtual reality may benefit to cognitive and behavioral therapies in psychiatry These interventions share a common framework that articulates thoughts feelings or emotions and behaviors and proposes gradual modification of each of these levels thanks to thought and schema analysis stress reduction procedures etc They were observed to be somehow useful for the treatment of depression stress disorders phobias and are gaining some authority in personality disorders and addictions The main asset of new technologies is the possibility to control the characteristics of symptom eliciting stimuli situations and more precisely the degree to which immersion is enforced For example Baus and Bouchard 2014 provide a review on the extension of virtual reality exposure based therapy toward recently described augmented reality exposure based therapy in individuals with phobias Concerning substance dependence disorders Hone Blanchet et collaborators 2014 present another review on how virtual reality can be an asset for both therapy and craving assessment stressing out the possibilities to simulate social interactions associated with drug seeking behaviors and even peers pressure to consume The last issue this Frontiers topic deals with encompasses the questions raised by social cognitive training or remediation in severe and chronic mental disorders autistic disorders schizophrenia Here therapies are based on drill and practice or strategy shaping procedures and most of the time share an errorless learning of repeated cognitive challenges Computerized methods were early proposed for that they do effortlessly and with limited costs repetitive stimulations While repetition was incompatible with realism in the social cognitive domain recent advances provide both immersion and full control over stimuli Georgescu and al 2014 exhaustively reviews the use of virtual characters to assess and train non verbal communication in high functioning autism HFA Grynszpan and Nadel 2015 present an original eye tracking method to reveal the link between gaze patterns and pragmatic abilities again in HFA About schizophrenia Oker and collaborators 2015 discuss and report some insights on how an affective and reactive virtual agents might be useful to assess and remediate several defects of social cognitive disorders About assessment within virtual avatars on schizophrenia Park et al 2014 focused on effect of perceived intimacy on social decision making with schizophrenia patients Regarding schizophrenia remediation Peyroux and Franck 2014 presented a new method named RC2S which is a cognitive remediation program to improve social cognition in schizophrenia and related disorders To conclude briefly while it is largely acknowledged that social interaction can be studied as a topic of its own all the contributions demonstrate the added value of expressive virtual agents and affective computing techniques for the experimentation It also appears that the use of virtual reality is at the very beginning of a new scientific endeavor in cognitive sciences and medicine

Software Quality Assurance Neil Walkinshaw, 2017-07-24 This textbook offers undergraduate students an introduction to the main principles and some of the most popular techniques that constitute software quality assurance The book seeks to engage students by placing an emphasis on the underlying foundations of modern quality assurance techniques using these to highlight why techniques work as opposed to merely focussing on how they work In doing so it provides readers with a comprehensive understanding of where software quality fits into the development lifecycle spoiler everywhere and what the key quality assurance activities are The book focuses on quality assurance in a way that typical more generic software engineering reference books do not It is structured so that it can and should be read from cover to cover throughout the course of a typical university module Specifically it is Concise it is small enough to be readable in its entirety over the course of a typical software engineering module Explanatory topics are discussed not merely in terms of what they are but also why they are the way they are what events technologies and individuals or organisations helped to shape them into what they are now Applied topics are covered with a view to giving the reader a good idea of how they can be applied in practice and by pointing where possible to evidence of their efficacy The book starts from some of the most general notions e g quality and development process and gradually homes in on the more specific activities assuming knowledge of the basic notions established in prior chapters Each chapter concludes with a Key Points section summarising the main issues that have been covered in the chapter Throughout the book there are exercises that serve to remind readers of relevant parts in the book that have been covered previously and give them the opportunity to reflect on a particular topic and refer to related references
