

Application Exam Prep Sheet

Administrative Notes

The exam will start at the beginning of class and will be 60 minutes long. Plan to arrive on time (better, a few minutes early) so that you are logged into Blackboard and can make use of the entire 60 minutes allowed. Students registered with OSAS who have an accommodation such as extra time will be granted that accommodation.

You are allowed to use one page of notes, front and back. But no other files, including ExcelPower!, past workbooks, powerpoint slides, etc.

No Cheating Allowed

In short, please do not cheat. Cheating will mean that you fail the course. Here are some details:

You are not allowed to communicate with anyone whether or not that person is in your class.

The Internet is to be used solely for access to Blackboard. It is not to be used for search, instant messaging, email or any other purpose. Anyone whom we found to be using the Internet for any purpose other than access to Blackboard will get an F in the course. In fact, anyone found to have violated the Academic Integrity policy in any way will get an F in the course. If you have iMessage on your laptop, please put it on do not disturb. Please read that again. This does not mean an F on the exam; it means an F in the course. (Sorry for the harsh warning, but there have been cases in the past where the Academic Integrity policy was not adhered to and the result was that those students got an F in the course.)

There will be several versions of the test. Blackboard will keep track of which version you are taking.

Exam Format

The exam will be in the form of an Excel workbook like those you have been working on in discussion. An unusual feature of the exam: The numerical answers to some problems will be given in the exam workbook. Yes, you read this correctly. But in the designated cells where you place your answers, you must enter Excel formulas that lead to the answers that are given. Your formulas must be such that if the data for the problem changes, the formulas you provided should automatically show the revised correct answers. This means you have to be careful to use cell references and not "hard code" values. As an example, consider the following simple question used to illustrate this point:

1
2		What is the sum of the numbers in cells A6 and B6?
3		Enter your answer in cell C6. Your formula should produce the result shown in green.
4
5
6		5		10
7

The answer you would provide in cell C6 would be:

=SUM(A6:B6) so that if the numbers in cells A6 and B6 change, the correct sum would be shown in cell C6. If the result you get from your formula does not match the result shown in green (see cell D6), you would know there is something not quite correct in your formula in C6.

In cases where there is a two-part question and you cannot answer the first part, you can use the answer shown in green in your answer to the second part. For example, suppose the above problem was the first part of a two-part question and the second part asked you to enter the square-root of your answer to the first part in cell C7. If you are not able to get the correct answer to the first part, your answer to the second part can be =SQRT(D6) which shows you know how to do the second part even if you were not able to do the first part.

You need to be very careful in how you use this information. On the one hand, if you see that the formula you are using leads to the numerical answer that has been supplied, you can move on to
