

Before You Begin - The Canterbury Tales

This particular study guide integrates all three classical education levels: Grammar, Dialectic, and Rhetoric. Parent and discussion questions are marked GR, DI, and RH, but all students should start with the GR questions, work their way up the numbered queries through DI and even into RH.

Even if you have a Grammar-level student, don't necessarily stop at the end of the GR questions; he may be able to comprehend and respond to the DI questions, and he just may have a brilliant response even to an RH question! However, parents should judge where to stop the questions and move on to the next section, based on their knowledge of their student's ability and maturity. Be aware that some of the RH questions explore Chaucer's more "earthly" themes, and are not appropriate for Grammar, or perhaps even some Dialectic level students.

For assignments that are to be turned in (e.g., comprehension questions, composition assignment, etc.), Grammar students are responsible for only the GR questions. Dialectic students should complete both GR and DI items. And Rhetoric students are responsible for answering all levels.

Note on Composition assignments: The instructions reference using Writers Express or Writers INC. It is not necessary to have either of these books to complete the assignments. Topics may be also researched on the Internet or in another English text book that you might have on hand.

The pilgrims arrive in Canterbury - public domain

Portrait of Chaucer by Thomas Hoccleve, 1412. Hoccleve claimed to personally know Chaucer. Although not proven, that many of Hoccleve's intended audience of courtly patrons would have seen Chaucer argues for Hoccleve's intention to provide an accurate portrait.
