The First Day of a New Congress: A Guide to Proceedings on the Senate Floor

Mildred L. Amer
Specialist in American National Government
Government and Finance Division

Summary

The Senate follows a well-established routine on the opening day of a new Congress. The proceedings include swearing in new members, administrative business, and election of the President pro tempore, the constitutionally mandated officer elected to preside over the chamber in the absence of the Vice President. Other first day activities are dependent on specific circumstances and do not occur on the first day of every new Congress. Once these proceedings are completed, the Senate may then turn to routine business. The Senate committee assignment process begins prior to the convening of a new Congress.

Article I, Section 2 of the Constitution provides for a system of staggered six-year terms for Senators, one-third of their terms expiring at the conclusion of each Congress. As a consequence, the Senate is a continuing body and does not have to reorganize itself each new Congress, as does the House of Representatives, by adopting new rules and electing new leaders. Any changes in Senate leadership take place in the party conferences prior to the opening day, and there are no floor votes to ratify these changes.

The Senate Convenes¹

The Constitution (20th Amendment, Section 2) mandates that a new Congress convene at noon on January 3 in each odd numbered year, unless it has earlier passed a law designating a different day. Recently, however, it has been the exception rather than the rule for a new Congress to begin on January 3. Five out of the last six Congresses — 104th (January 4, 1995), the 105th (January 7, 1997), the 106th (January 6, 1999), the 108th Congress (January 7, 2003), and the 109th (January 4, 2005) — convened on another date. Only for the 107th Congress was the beginning date unchanged.

¹ For information on organizational meetings held prior to the formal start of a new Congress, see CRS Report RS21339, Congress' Early Organizational Meetings, by Judy Schneider.
