Weirton Dennis R. Jones, 2014-11-17 Weirton was originally settled as the village of Holliday's Cove a strategic fortification along the Ohio River in northwestern Virginia In 1909 a tinplate mill was established in northern Holliday's Cove and Weirton was born Thousands of immigrants of many nationalities came here to work and live while Ernest T Weir created his life's dream of a fully integrated steel plant Weirton became the Largest Unincorporated Town in the Country and remained unincorporated for 38 years In 1947 Weirton combined with Holliday's Cove Weirton Heights and Marland Heights to become the official City of Weirton Thomas E Millsop president of Weirton Steel Co became the first mayor and the mill became a major factor in the city's success Many historic moments including the record snowfall of Thanksgiving weekend 1950 were highlighted in the Weirton Steel Employees Bulletin Weirton captures this event and tells the story of the New City which thrived in the 1950s and 1960s

Historic Tales of the Upper Ohio Valley Paul Zuros, 2023 The Upper Ohio River runs along the border between West Virginia and Ohio where the cities of Weirton and Steubenville face each other across the flowing water The history of these two municipalities has been intertwined from their earliest days Discover stories of the early pioneers on both sides of the river and what they learned about their Native American predecessors Tales of bygone celebrations will entertain and rumors of local haunts will chill readers to the bone The stories of these industrial centers as well as their preindustrial past will intrigue and delight young and old Join historian Paul J Zuros as he weaves a rich narrative reliving the tales as only as local can experience them

Smokestacks in the Hills Lou Martin, 2015-10-15 Long considered an urban phenomenon industrialization also transformed the American countryside Lou Martin weaves the narrative of how the relocation of steel and pottery factories to Hancock County West Virginia created a rural and small town working class and what that meant for communities and for labor As Martin shows access to land in and around steel and pottery towns allowed residents to preserve rural habits and culture Workers in these places valued place and local community Because of their belief in localism an individualistic ethic of making do and company loyalty they often worked to place limits on union influence At the same time this localism allowed workers to adapt to the dictates of industrial capitalism and a continually changing world on their own terms and retain rural ways to a degree unknown among their urbanized peers Throughout Martin ties these themes to illuminating discussions of capital mobility the ways in which changing work experiences defined gender roles and the persistent myth that modernizing forces bulldozed docile local cultures Revealing and incisive Smokestacks in the Hills reappraises an overlooked stratum of American labor history and contributes to the ongoing dialogue on shifts in national politics in the postwar era

Hancock County George B. Hines, III, Lou Martin, 2006 Hancock County West Virginia located in the Upper Ohio Valley was first settled during the Revolutionary War Over the next century it transformed from a frontier forest into rolling fields pastures and orchards In the 1830s investors began building brickyards in New Cumberland which would become the county seat Hancock County was still primarily home to farmers and brickhands until the construction of potteries including the world s largest pottery Homer Laughlin China which gave birth to the towns of Chester and Newell The location of a steel mill near Hollidays Cove created the town of Weirton The new industries tripled the county s population and provided employment to three and four generations of county residents Recently tourism and recreation have become increasingly important to the local economy evolving from the bygone days of Rock Springs Park to the ever expanding Mountaineer Race Track and Gaming Resort of the present Weirton Dennis R. Historic Movie Theatres of West Virginia Kelli Shapiro, PhD, and the Preservation Alliance of West Virginia,2018-08-27 Over the course of the 20th century West Virginia contained an impressive diversity of movie theatres ranging from multipurpose auditoriums in company towns to early nickelodeons and from ornate urban picture palaces to neighborhood movie houses and suburban drive ins In the state s working class areas as well as in upscale districts where industry barons lived residents came together to find amusement and relaxation in these invaluable venues Many of these theatres have since disappeared from the landscape while others sit vacant or have been converted for other uses Some

however have been reopened or restored They proudly provide their communities with entertainment today whether showing films or hosting the performing arts They serve as catalysts for local revitalization and as success stories showcasing the value of historic preservation

Steeltown U.S.A. Sherry Lee Linkon, John Russo, 2002-06-10 Once the symbol of a robust steel industry and blue collar economy Youngstown Ohio and its famous Jeannette Blast Furnace have become key icons in the tragic tale of American deindustrialization Sherry Lee Linkon and John Russo examine the inevitable tension between those discordant visions which continue to exert great power over Steeltown's citizens as they struggle to redefine their lives When the Jenny was shut down in 1978 50 000 Youngstown workers lost their jobs cutting the heart out of the local economy Even as the community organized a nationally recognized effort to save the mills the city was rocked by economic devastation runaway crime and mob scandal problems that persist twenty five years later In the midst of these struggles the Jenny remained standing as a proud symbol of the community's glory days still a dominant force in the construction of both individual and collective identities in Youngstown Focusing on stories and images that both reflect and perpetuate how Youngstown understands itself as a community Sherry Lee Linkon and John Russo have forged a historical and cultural study of the relationship between community memory work and conflict Drawing on written texts visual images sculptures films songs and interviews with people who have lived and worked in Youngstown the authors show the importance of memory in forming the collective identity of a place Steeltown U S A is a richly developed portrait of a place showing how images of the Jenny and of Youngstown have been used in national media and connecting these representations to the broader public conversation about work and place Bruce Springsteen's song Youngstown the book Journey to Nowhere and other pop culture artifacts have helped make Youngstown the symbolic epicenter of American deindustrialization And while many people see the need to get over the past and on with the future in rushing to erase the difficult parts of Youngstown's history they might also forget the powerful events that made the city so important such as the struggles for economic and social justice that improved the lives of steelworkers This multifaceted study of the meaning of work and place in one community pointedly depicts the relationships among economic development media representations and community life As we see how people's faith in the value of their work dwindled away in Youngstown their stories can help us understand not only how the meaning of work has changed but also why the changing meaning of work matters
