

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 20 men, aged 40-50 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to either a control group (n=10) or a training group (n=10). The training group participated in a 12-week program of aerobic exercise, three times per week, for 45 minutes per session. The control group did not participate in any exercise program. Physical fitness was assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks using a variety of tests, including a maximal aerobic power test, a submaximal aerobic power test, and a resting heart rate test. Health was assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks using a variety of tests, including a blood pressure test, a cholesterol test, and a glucose test. The results of the study showed that the training group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health than the control group at 12 weeks. The training group had a significantly higher maximal aerobic power, a significantly higher submaximal aerobic power, and a significantly lower resting heart rate than the control group. The training group also had a significantly lower blood pressure, a significantly lower cholesterol level, and a significantly lower glucose level than the control group. These results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men.

Examining Information Literacy in Academic Libraries Chizwina, Sabelo, Moyo, Mathew, 2024-04-09 In the 21st century information literacy emerges as the cornerstone of educational development. Despite its paramount significance, a stark reality persists: students often traverse the corridors of academia without acquiring essential information literacy skills. This deficiency is exacerbated by a shortage of faculty training, leaving academic libraries to shoulder the responsibility of cultivating information-savvy individuals. Examining Information Literacy in Academic Libraries delves into the core challenges and solutions surrounding this critical educational imperative. This book illuminates the role of academic libraries as bastions of information literacy instruction. The capacity of students and information consumers to seek, evaluate, and utilize information is paramount for informed decision-making, ethically and legally. Regardless of whether or not students were brought up in the digital age, many lack the fundamental information literacy skills required for higher education. This deficiency manifests in academic malpractices such as plagiarism, which compromise the integrity of educational institutions. Moreover, this imperative work contends that the Fourth Industrial Revolution (4IR) is not a distant concept but a present reality. The recent global upheaval caused by the Coronavirus pandemic accelerated the adoption of new technologies, necessitating a swift reassessment of our collective ability to navigate this ever-changing digital and information landscape. Focusing on media literacy, data literacy, and digital literacy with information literacy as the overarching domain, this book serves as a beacon for educators, librarians, and policymakers.

Veterinary Medical School Admission Requirements (VMSAR) Association of American Veterinary Medical Colleges, 2015-04 Fully up to date and packed with useful tips and helpful insights, this publication provides a comprehensive overview of the admission process for the national and international veterinary schools that are members of the Association of American Veterinary Medical Colleges (AAVMC). As the official guide to getting into vet school, it provides hundreds of pages of must-have information essential to achieving your goal of becoming a veterinarian. The heart of the book is a directory of member schools providing for each one the following information: a summary of application procedures, requirements for application and residency, prerequisites for admission, deadlines for each component of the application process, description of campus and campus life, and cost of tuition and fees. Full-page spreads provide a complete profile of the different campuses and clearly lay out all the details you need to select the school that matches your needs best. Additional information includes an overview of the Veterinary Medical College Application Service (VMCAS), information about the accreditation of veterinary schools and professional licensure as a veterinarian, a helpful timeline for aspiring vets from high school onward, and firsthand accounts from current students and practitioners about what it's like to train as a vet. The book provides the best concise, current, and comparative information for those students interested in preparing for a career in veterinary medicine, as well as their advisors and counselors. It is the essential guide to becoming a DVM. As Executive Director of AAVMC, Dr. Andrew McCabe writes: "These are exciting times for
