Title: The Impact of Social Media on Adolescent Mental Health in 2060 and Beyond

Written by: [Your Name]

I. Introduction

In the year 2060, the pervasive use of social media among adolescents has become a critical area of study within social sciences. With 92% of adolescents actively engaging with various social media platforms for an average of 6.5 hours daily (Smith & Davis, 2051), the implications on their mental health cannot be ignored. This literature review endeavors to explore the multifaceted relationship between social media usage and adolescent mental health, providing an in-depth analysis of recent data and research findings.

II. Prevalence of Social Media Usage

The near-universal adoption of social media by adolescents in 2060 underscores the need to understand its impact comprehensively. This section will examine:

- Types of social media platforms predominantly used by adolescents in 2060
- Daily usage patterns and demographics
- Comparison of social media usage trends from 2050 to 2060

III. Impact on Mental Health

Research has drawn attention to the correlation between high social media usage and the heightened incidence of mental health issues among adolescents. The critical findings include:

- 30% increase in anxiety and depression rates compared to 2050 levels (Johnson et al., 2052)
- Broader spectrum of mental health impacts, including stress, body image concerns, and sleep disturbances
- Differentiation between negative and positive outcomes of social media engagement
