House of Commons, 2010 The Negotiated Self, 2018-11-01 Teacher identity resides in the foundational beliefs and assumptions educators have about teaching and learning These beliefs and assumptions develop both inside and outside of the classroom blurring the lines between the professional and the personal Examining the development of teacher identity at this intersection requires a unique reflexive capacity Reflexive inquiry is both established and continually emerging At its most basic reflexivity refers to researchers consciousness of their role in and effect on both the act of doing research and arriving at research findings In making central the role of the researcher in the research process reflexive inquiry interrogates agency while examining philosophical notions about the nature of knowledge While advancements have been made in investigating the relationship between teacher knowledge and teacher practice the research often fails to connect this meaning with self knowledge and issues of identity

Through a consideration of these tenets the authors in this collection embrace critical qualitative creative and arts integrated approaches to examine ways that reflexive inquiry supports studies in teacher identity Moving between theory and lived experience the authors individually and collectively lay bare teacher identity as negotiated while evidencing the epistemological merits of reflexive inquiry

Or Words to That Effect Daniel F. Chamberlain,J. Edward Chamberlin,2016-01-27 This volume raises questions about why oral celebrations of language receive so little attention in published literary histories when they are simultaneously recognized as fundamental to our understanding of literature It aims to prompt debate regarding the transformations needed for literary historians to provide a more balanced and fuller appreciation of what we call literature one that acknowledges the interdependence of oral storytelling and written expression whether in print pictorial or digital form Rather than offering a summary of current theories or prescribing solutions this volume brings together distinguished scholars conventional literary historians and oral performer practitioners from regions as diverse as South Africa the Canadian Arctic the Roma communities of Eastern Europe and the music industry of the American West in a conversation that engages the reader directly with the problems that they have encountered and the questions that they have explored in their work with orality and with literary history
