The last great work of the age of reason the final instance when all human knowledge could be presented with a single point of view Unabashed optimism and unabashed racism pervades many entries in the 11th and provide its defining characteristics Despite its occasional ugliness the reputation of the 11th persists today because of the staggering depth of knowledge contained with its volumes It is especially strong in its biographical entries These delve deeply into the history of men and women prominent in their eras who have since been largely forgotten except by the historians scholars The offer yourself to be slain General Sir John Hackett once observed remarking on the military profession This is the essence of being a soldier For this reason as much as any other the British army has invariably been seen as standing apart from other professions and sometimes from society as a whole A British Profession of Arms effectively counters this view In this definitive study of the late Victorian army distinguished scholar Ian F W Beckett finds that the British soldier like any other professional was motivated by considerations of material reward and career advancement Within the context of debates about both the evolution of Victorian professions and the nature of military professionalism Beckett considers the late Victorian officer corps as a case study for weighing distinctions between the British soldier and his civilian counterparts Beckett examines the role of personality politics and patronage in the selection and promotion of officers He looks too at the internal and external influences that extended from the press and public opinion to the rivalry of the so called rings of adherents of major figures such as Garnet Wolseley and Frederick Roberts In particular he considers these processes at play in high command in the Second Afghan War 1878 81 the Anglo Zulu War 1879 and the South African War 1899 1902 Based on more than thirty years of research into surviving official semiofficial and private correspondence Beckett s work offers an intimate and occasionally amusing picture of what might affect an officer s career wealth wives and family status promotion boards and strategic preferences performance in the field and diplomatic outcomes It is a remarkable depiction of the British profession of arms unparalleled in breadth depth and detail     "The" Graphic ,1880     Ports & Cities of the World W. H.
