Pinkard, 2013-11 Terry Pinkard draws on Hegel's central works as well as his lectures on aesthetics the history of philosophy and the philosophy of history in this deeply informed and original exploration of Hegel's naturalism As Pinkard explains Hegel's version of naturalism was in fact drawn from Aristotelian naturalism Hegel fused Aristotle's conception of nature with his insistence that the origin and development of philosophy has empirical physics as its presupposition As a result Hegel found that although modern nature must be understood as a whole to be non purposive there is nonetheless a place for Aristotelian purposiveness within such nature Such a naturalism provides the framework for explaining how we are both natural organisms and also practically minded self determining rationally responsive reason giving beings In arguing for this point Hegel shows that the kind of self division which is characteristic of human agency also provides human agents with an updated version of an Aristotelian final end of life Pinkard treats this conception of the final end of being at one with oneself in two parts The first part focuses on Hegel s account of agency in naturalist terms and how it is that agency requires such a self division while the second part explores how Hegel thinks a historical narration is essential for understanding what this kind of self division has come to require of itself In making his case Hegel argues that both the antinomies of philosophical thought and the essential fragmentation of modern life are all not to be understood as overcome in a higher order unity in the State On the contrary Hegel demonstrates that modern institutions do not resolve such tensions any more than a comprehensive philosophical account can resolve them theoretically The job of modern practices and institutions and at a reflective level the task of modern philosophy is to help us understand and live with precisely the unresolvability of these oppositions Therefore Pinkard explains Hegel is not the totality theorist he has been taken to be nor is he an identity thinker la Adorno He is an anti totality thinker
