

Structure of DNA

Structure of a DNA Molecule:

- DNA, or deoxyribonucleic acid, is the molecule that contains the instructions for the growth and development of all organisms.
- It consists of two strands of DNA wound around each other in what is called a double helix.
- The individual units of DNA are called nucleotides.

- All nucleotides contain the same phosphate and deoxyribose sugar, but differ from each other in the base attached.
- There are four different bases, Adenine (A), Cytosine (C), Thymine (T) and Guanine (G).
- The bases on each strand pair up with each other, holding the two strands of DNA in the double helix.
- The bases always pair up in the same way: Adenine always pairs with Thymine (A-T) Cytosine always pairs with Guanine (C-G).
