Zimmerman,1929 Elaborates the matters in rural urban knowledge Lines out the fields overlapping rural urban matters sociology social class population public health urbanization and suicide longevity and mortality birth rate and vitality and intelligence The City Deborah Stevenson,2013-04-26 This book is a fresh and engaging analysis of the city as a central concept in contemporary social thought It probes the contested and negotiated ways in which cities are built understood lived and imagined Taking a thematic approach and drawing on a range of theoretical methodological and empirical points of reference it examines such subjects as urban inequality public space creative cities globalization the night time economy suburbia and memory and emotion In The City Deborah Stevenson argues that as theories and concepts shape what is known about cities and urban life it is necessary to build conceptual frameworks that engage with the intersections and tensions between urban processes and trends as well as with the complexities of everyday urban life This book's combination of original insight and critical synthesis will make it an invaluable contribution for an international interdisciplinary readership of students and scholars in sociology geography urban studies and wider social science and the humanities An Analysis of Jane Jacobs's The Death and Life of Great American Cities Martin Fuller,Ryan Moore,2017-07-05 Despite having no formal training in urban planning Jane Jacobs deftly explores the strengths and weaknesses of policy arguments put forward by American urban planners in the era after World War II They believed that the efficient movement of cars was of more value in the development of US cities than the everyday lives of the people living there By carefully examining their relevance in her 1961 book The Death and Life of Great American Cities Jacobs dismantles these arguments by highlighting their shortsightedness She evaluates the information to hand and comes to a very different conclusion that urban planners ruin great cities because they don't understand that it is a city's social interaction that makes it great. Proposals and policies that are drawn from planning theory do not consider the social dynamics of city life. They are in thrall to futuristic fantasies of a modern way of living that bears no relation to reality or to the desires of real people living in real spaces. Professionals lobby for separation and standardization, splitting commercial, residential, industrial, and cultural spaces. But a truly visionary approach to urban planning should incorporate spaces with mixed uses together with short walkable blocks, large concentrations of people, and a mix of new and old buildings. This creates true urban vitality.

Urbanization and the Migrant in British Cinema Gareth Millington, 2016-11-09 This book examines a cycle of films about migration made in the late 1990s and 2000s. It argues that these films present a novel and radical aesthetic of planetary urbanization based upon the mobility of the migrant and the dissolution of the city. A stimulating cinematic analysis of our expanding urban fabric, it offers an alternative to the cultural cityism of many other films about migration. The author demonstrates that this particular film cycle offers a rare sustained consideration of the travails and struggles for urban life by migrants beyond and without the city. Yet the city haunts these films like a spectre, the city that has been lost, the present city that excludes and the possible cities of refuge of the future. Offering new insights into the cinematic portrayal of the figure of the migrant and how this is constructed in relation to urbanization processes, this book will appeal to students and scholars of sociology, film, and media studies, human geography, and urban studies.
