

Summary

Friction is a force that opposes motion in all contacted surfaces. This will occur with particles (eg vehicles) experiencing its greatest opposing resistance when direction and sliding motion, thereby leading to the highest resistance from surfaces that are not moving, sliding, or sliding in the opposite direction from sliding motion.

1. Calculating Motion

In the illustration above, a force of 10 N is applied to an object. The object is stationary.

Calculate the force of friction.

What are the forces of friction? (The object is not moving, so the friction force is zero.)

There is also a diagram for sliding motion.

Illustration

Force of friction $F_f = \mu F_N$ where F_N is the normal force of the object.

In this diagram:

• F_N is the normal force.

• F_f is the force of friction.

• F_f is the force of friction (force opposing motion).

Illustration: A block is sliding on a surface. The force of friction is the force of friction. The force of friction is the force of friction. The force of friction is the force of friction.

$$\begin{aligned} F_f &= \mu F_N \\ F_f &= 0.5 \times 10 \text{ N} \\ F_f &= 5 \text{ N} \end{aligned}$$

The friction force F_f must be greater than 10 N.

2. Static Friction

Friction opposes motion and acts from the surface of the object. The force of friction is the force of friction. The force of friction is the force of friction.

1. A force of 10 N is applied to a block. The force of friction is the force of friction. The force of friction is the force of friction. The force of friction is the force of friction.
