

A pair of trapezoids are made of the 12 trapezoid that. Another height is drawn in the same trapezoid as the first. The only difference is the height of the trapezoid is 24 units instead. What is the height of the trapezoid?

.....

The green height of the trapezoid is given to be 6.

How to solve for the height of the trapezoid

We have to solve for this by making use of the height of a trapezoid. The height is given as:

$$h = \frac{2(A_1 + A_2)}{b_1 + b_2}$$

The variables here are:

$$h = \text{height}$$

$$A_1 = \text{length of base 1}$$

$$A_2 = \text{length of base 2}$$

If the trapezoid that we have is a rectangle, then base 1 is going to be the same length as that of the first base.
