Camera Crew: Parents (Erin Ropelato and Leesa Henely)

Costumes: Jim, old clothes, hair back into a low ponytail with a hat, Pew, a patch covering one of his eyes, uncontrolled hair, old dirty clothes, a sea clock (dreadful looking) Mrs. Hawkins, an old dress, hair in a ponytail, Billy Bones, a beard, old dirty clothes, a sword.

Pew: Will any kind friend inform a poor blind man, who has lost the precious sight of his eyes in the gracious defense of his native country, England, and God bless King George!-where or in what part of this country he may now be?

Jim: You are at the Admiral Benbow, black Hill Cove, my good man."

Pew: I hear a voice. A young voice. Will you give me your hand, my kind young friend, and lead me in?

Jim: (holds out his hand and Pew grips it very hard)

Pew: Now boy., take me to the captain.

Jim: Sir, upon my word I dare not.

Pew: Oh, (madly aggressively) that's it. Take me in straight, or I'll break you arm.

Jim: Sir. It is for yourself I mean. The captain is not what he used to be. He sits with a cutlass. Another gentleman-.

Pew: Come on, now March. (cruel, ugly, cold voice)

Bill: (He looks afraid as Pew walks in.)

Dead Air William Elliott Hazelgrove,2024-11-19 A granular history Wall Street Journal of the greatest hoax in radio history and the panic that followed which Publishers Weekly calls a rollicking portrait of a director on the cusp of greatness and Booklist in a starred review says Hazelgrove s feverishly focused retelling of the broadcast as well as the fallout makes for a propulsive read as a study of both a cultural moment of mass hysteria and the singular voice at its root On a warm Halloween Eve October 30 1938 during a broadcast of H G Wells War of the Worlds a twenty three year old Orson Welles held his hands up for radio silence in the CBS studio in New York City while millions of people ran out into the night screaming grabbed shotguns drove off in cars and hid in basements attics or anywhere they could find to get away from Martians intent on exterminating the human race As Welles held up his hands to his fellow actors musicians and sound technicians he turned six seconds of radio silence dead air into absolute horror changing the way the world would view media forever and making himself one of the most famous men in America In Dead Air The Night that Orson Welles Terrified America William Elliot Hazelgrove illustrates for the first time how Orson Welles broadcast caused massive panic in the United States convincing listeners across the nation that the end of the World had arrived and even leading military and government officials to become involved Using newspaper accounts of the broadcast Hazelgrove shows the true staggering effect that Welles opera of panic had on the nation Beginning with Welles incredible rise from a young man who lost his parents early to a child prodigy of the stage Dead Air introduces a Welles who threw his Hail Mary with War of the Worlds knowing full well that obscurity and fame are two sides of the same coin Hazelgrove demonstrates that Welles knew he had one shot to grab the limelight before it forever passed him by and he made it count Catalog of Copyright Entries.

In this study Gould argues that it was in the imperial capital's theatrical venues that the public was put into contact with the places and peoples of empire Plays and similar forms of spectacle offered Victorian audiences the illusion of unmediated access to the imperial periphery separated from the action by only the thin shadow of the proscenium arch theatrical audiences observed cross cultural contact in action But without narrative direction of the sort found in novels and travelogues theatregoers were left to their own interpretive devices making imperial drama both a powerful and yet uncertain site for the transmission of official imperial ideologies Nineteenth century playwrights fed the public's interest in Britain's Empire by producing a wide variety of plays set in colonial locales India Australia and to a lesser extent Africa These plays recreated the battles that consolidated Britain's hold on overseas territories dramatically depicted western humanitarian intervention in indigenous cultural practices celebrated images of imperial supremacy and occasionally criticized the sexual and material excesses that accompanied the processes of empire building An active participant in the real world drama of empire the Victorian theatre produced popular images that reflected interrogated and reinforced imperial policy Indeed it was largely through plays and spectacles that the British public vicariously encountered the sights and sounds of the distant imperial periphery Empire as it was seen on stage was empire as it was popularly known the repetitions of character types plot scenarios and thematic concerns helped forge an idea of empire that though largely imaginary entertained informed and molded the theatre-going British public
