

TRANSFER APPLICATION ESSAY SAMPLE

Upon graduating high school, my long term goal was to stay close to home and major in Agriculture, something that would enable me to carry on the family business. Coming from a largely rural area, my parents encouraged me to attend college, but always stressed the importance of supporting the community. For many generations, our town has been highly reliant on agriculture, and not much has changed since the time of my grandparents. This was the mindset with which I entered St. John's College, a regional school located just twenty minutes from my home. I thought that this would enable me to help at home while pursuing a dutiful career in something that I had been brought up to do.

Everything changed one day when I took a computer science course in order to fulfill a graduation requirement. I had selected the class on a whim, hoping that it would give me better insight as to how to unleash the full potential of my Android phone, but nothing more. What resulted was me requesting to take additional computer programming courses, and engaging in self-study when none more were available. It was a very scary experience to explain to my parents that I no longer wanted to study Agriculture, and that computer science was a field that both interested and felt natural to me. Ultimately, they were supportive of my decision, and I hope to be able to transfer to a college that offers a stronger computer science program so that I can continue my education in the field. As a leader in technological studies nationwide, Stonyfield University offers a strong computer science program perfect for students that already possess a good amount of credits in the field. I look forward to learning from expert programmers and industry professionals, incorporating not only their knowledge of computer science, but also their advice for success. Continuing in the field of computer science is very important to me, which is why I have also gained many skills through self-study. A Computer Science degree from Stonyfield University would enhance my current skillset and prepare me for a career in the industry ahead.

McCormick, Gloria E. Miller, Michael Pressley, 2012-12-06 Highly regarded experts review the state of the art in cognitive strategy research with an emphasis on the transition from laboratory to educational contexts Basic research on models of competent learning are discussed as well as specific instructional applications in educational domains such as reading writing mathematics and science Fresh perspectives and innovative suggestions for teacher training and educational reform are proffered Researchers in psychology and education as well as teacher educators and educational practitioners interested in becoming well versed in current cognitive strategy research will benefit from the interdisciplinary nature and comprehensiveness of Cognitive Strategy Research From Basic Issues to Educational Applications Exploring the Cross-Language Transfer of L1 Rhetorical Knowledge in L2 Writing Xing Wei, 2023-12-02 This book addresses the transfer of rhetorical knowledge from a first language L1 to a second language L1 to L2 rhetorical transfer a common cognitive phenomenon in the L2 writing of students in foreign language learning environments It investigates L1 to L2 rhetorical transfer from a cognitive perspective and examines a specific component of L2 writers agency in this transfer namely metacognition The book's ultimate goal is to enhance our understanding of the cognitive mechanism of rhetorical transfer across languages This goal is in turn connected to the need to determine how L1 rhetorical knowledge can be steered and oriented toward successful L2 writing To this end this book proposes a theoretical framework for transfer studies encompassing the dimensions of text transfer agency and L2 essay raters It facilitates an in depth exploration of the intricacies involved in L1 to L2 rhetorical transfer It then presents empirical studies on this transfer Embracing a dynamic perspective this book furthers our understanding of interlingual rhetorical transfer as a conscious or intuitive process for making meaning one that can be monitored and steered Moreover it discusses the pedagogical implications for L2 writing instruction that guides students to use metacognition to transfer L1 rhetorical knowledge during L2 writing Technology Transfer to Latin American Countries Sascha Hannig Núñez, 2025-03-12 Hannig N ez analyzes the processes behind technology transfers at a state decision making level in Latin America She challenges the conventional notion that the United States and China hold a dominant technological presence over the region highlighting the increasing influence from both middle powers and regional actors This book builds on existing theory and case studies to assess the relevance of economic incentives geopolitical rivalries and value driven considerations in the outcomes of technology transfer in different scenarios It further explores the notion of a new Cold War between China and the United States and examines how these superpowers leverage technology transfers to extend their influence but ultimately fall short due to growing competition from previously overlooked players In closely examining these dynamics Hannig N ez demonstrates how technology transfer is not solely an economic process but a significant geopolitical tool that influences international order national sovereignty and regional integration An invaluable resource for students academics and researchers interested in the intersection between technology cybersecurity and international politics Chapter 9 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Cross-Linguistic Transfer of Writing Strategies Karen Forbes, 2020-10-19 In the context of increasingly multilingual global educational settings this book provides a timely exploration of the phenomenon of cross linguistic transfer of writing strategies in particular transfer from the foreign language to the first language and presents a compelling case for a multilingual approach to writing pedagogy The book presents evidence from a classroom based intervention study conducted in a secondary school in England on cross linguistic strategy transfer It suggests that even beginner or low proficiency foreign language learners can develop effective skills and strategies in the foreign language classroom which can also positively influence writing in other languages including their first language This book ultimately encourages more joined up cross curricular cross linguistic thinking related to language in schools by exploring the potential for collaboration between languages teachers

Approaching Language Transfer through Text Classification Scott Jarvis, Scott A. Crossley, 2012-03-14 Recent work has pointed to the need for a detection based approach to transfer capable of discovering elusive crosslinguistic effects through the use of human judges and computer classifiers that can learn to predict learners language backgrounds based on their patterns of language use This book addresses that need It details the nature of the detection based approach discusses how this approach fits into the overall scope of transfer research and discusses the few previous studies that have laid the groundwork for this approach The core of the book consists of five empirical studies that use computer classifiers to detect the native language affiliations of texts written by foreign language learners of English The results highlight combinations of language features that are the most reliable predictors of learners language backgrounds
