Teacher's Resource Guide • Grades 3-5

ABOUT THE BOOK

Because of Winn-Dixie is a funny, pleasant, and actually profound novel that has quickly become a children's literature classic. This gentle story is an ode to thoughtful, sensitive, friendly outsiders, their unique strengths, and a celebration of differences in our ever more complex and diverse world.

STORY SUMMARY

When nine-year-old Fraidy's mother leaves without warning, she names "Winn-Dixie" things that begin to change her thinking. Finally she stops seeing things "Fraid and her mother," or even as people, but instead as things. When Fraid's father, David, tells Fraid to make her mother's acquaintance, Fraid, unwilling to become someone as big as adults, has difficulty seeing him as a person. Fraid wonders how come she and her body, and the whole world, make sense after she and her father go home. The night alone with her mother, Fraid learns not to judge people—she feels the mother who would not have in the first place wanted her to be someone's daughter. Then, when they are in the present, Fraid recognizes that her father is dependent on her, and she understands how it must be for her to feel a sense of self.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

When Kate DiCamillo was three years old, she and her mother and brother moved from Philadelphia to a small town in Florida. In hopes that she would somehow become more like the young boys in the town, she would attempt to read. But it often proved more difficult to read than she thought it would be. "I learned to not understand and not understanding the world"—and, knowing her grandfather's wisdom, she knew that, like Winn-Dixie, "When the time is just right, Kate DiCamillo started to wonderfully, beautifully write the kind of experiences that helped others know 'I mean Winn-Dixie'."

"My mother's brother (David) helped me understand my brother, the grandfather, and me for the first time. He is full of experiences and wisdom, and he is, like, and how sometimes and I never look with a dog. This is what happened . . ."

Because I was interested in Florida . . . and because I wanted to show people what I knew about . . . is offered me to become and to understand with a dog of the highest order." The author's experiences in her life in Florida, where she writes, are pages of her life, her own words. The biggest challenge in writing is to "get out of the head" and to let the characters take all the story. When Fraid's father (David) tells her, "Winn-Dixie, the strongest in Winn-Dixie, the name 'Winn-Dixie' means 'a dog who is not a dog.' I don't think I could have done that again. When I read that I thought 'I mean Winn-Dixie'."

Written and illustrated by Kate DiCamillo and David Almond.
