The Demoralization of Teachers Dan Wang, 2013-05-16 The educational system in China is marked by its dramatic inequality between rural and urban schools The challenges facing rural schools are usually understood as disadvantages in funding facilities and staffing which consequently result in undesirable student performance in general This book however penetrates these phenomena on the surface and brings forth a much deeper moral crisis in rural education a crisis that is entrenched in the complicated interlocking of formal and informal institutions within and beyond the school The Demoralization of Teachers describes the work and workplace in a rural school from the perspective of teachers who were working there It faithfully depicts the lamentable state of teachers work morale in the school and little by little as if a detective story reveals the reasons for the teachers demoralization by vivid narratives The book demonstrates the profound impact on the meanings of teaching exerted by the state curriculum reform the formal and informal norms and regulations in the school and the erosion of moral integrity in the state bureaucracy and the society at large The crisis in the rural school stops to be a rural or educational problem in nature but mirrors the societal wide transformation in political economy as well as in ideology in the current reform China The sheer complexity of the moral crisis in this ethnography calls for renewed efforts to identify and investigate the educational problems in rural China from fresh theoretical perspectives that situate rural education in broader historical and social contexts and processes

Scanlan, 2017-05-26 This book makes the case for a New Environmentalism and using a systems change approach takes the reader through ideas for reorienting the economy. It addresses the laws and policies needed to support the emergence of a new economy across a variety of major areas from energy to food across common pool resources and shifting investments to capitalize locally connected and mission driven businesses. The authors take the approach that the challenges are much broader than setting parameters around pollution and go to the heart of the dominant global political economy. It explores the values needed to transform our current economic system into a new economy supportive of ecological integrity, social justice and vibrant democracy.

Between Preservation and Exploitation Kemi Fuentes-George, 2016-03-25. A study of biodiversity governance analyzes the factors that determine the effectiveness of transnational advocacy networks and the importance of justice claims to conservation. In the late 2000s, ordinary citizens in Jamaica and Mexico demanded that government put a stop to lucrative but environmentally harmful economic development activities: bauxite mining in Jamaica and large scale tourism and overfishing on the eastern coast of the Yucatán Peninsula. In each case, the catalyst for the campaign was information gathered and disseminated by transnational advocacy networks. Teams of researchers, academics and activists. Both campaigns were successful despite opposition from industry supporters. Meanwhile, simultaneous campaigns to manage land in another part of the Yucatán and to conserve migratory birds in Egypt had far less success. In this book, Kemi Fuentes George uses these four cases to analyze factors that determine the success or failure of efforts by TANs to persuade policymakers and private sector actors in developing countries to change environmental behavior. Fuentes George argues that in order to influence the design and implementation of policy, TANs must generate a scientific consensus, create social relationships with local actors and advocate for biodiversity in a way that promotes local environmental justice. Environmentally just policies would allow local populations access to their lands provided they use natural resources sustainably. Justice claims are also more likely to generate needed support among local groups for conservation projects. In their conservation efforts, Jamaica, Mexico and Egypt were attempting to meet their obligations under the UN Convention on Biological Diversity and other regional agreements. Fuentes George's innovative analysis shows the importance of local environmental justice for the implementation of international environmental treaties.
