

Upon the onset of war, Benjamin's hands are tied and he half-heartedly allows Benjamin to join the war. The Crown's army is far superior in terms of armory and the soldiers clearly outnumber the Continentals. All around there are remnants of destroyed property and hanging corpses of civilians in areas conquered by England. Any sane person can establish that America will lose and wise people like Benjamin attest that, the war was won before it began. The family is deeply disheveled as they worry about Gabriel.

Gabriel's return from war forms a most profound scene and it is also the film's turning point. Needless to say, the events that unfold change the cause of America. Gabriel is wounded and a sad Benjamin caters to his son. To add salt to injury, the family witnesses a battle between the British and Americans. As expected, the British effortlessly triumph over the Americans. Benjamin is a kind man and he nurses and allows wounded soldiers of the British army to recuperate in his house. When the head of the British regiment, William Tavington makes a call to the house to appreciate Benjamin's generosity, an incriminating letter is confiscated from Gabriel by the British. Gabriel is mercilessly sentenced to hang for treason by the ruthless colonel despite Benjamin's pleading. In the midst of this mayhem, his younger brother Thomas intervenes in an attempt to save his brother. Colonel Tavington does not hesitate and he shoots Thomas. The image of a helpless Benjamin clutching onto his dead son will be permanently etched in my mind. His pitiful face was so startling and I deeply empathized with him. This state of grief is representative of what Americans felt during the revolutionary war as they helplessly experienced the demise of their loved ones. The death of his son was so devastating, and in response, a warring spirit was stirred up in Benjamin. The once passive Benjamin resolved to take an active role in the revolutionary war, more so to avenge the death of his son.

Brooks, 2019-09-24 This volume offers film enthusiasts and teachers an investigation into what film critics do and examines what ideologies inform their evaluations By employing recent television programs and films and comparing them to older ones the study is able to trace changes in the methodologies of film and media critics The work argues for the emergence of neofuturism as a chosen method of interpretation contrasting with the dominance of postmodernism as the evaluative method through the early years of the new millennium It also asks the questions who evaluates film and why In doing so the study questions the criteria for film evaluation the validity of some reviews and asks the question whether the evaluative system needs to change altogether Military Review, 2004 Burnt Cork Stephen Burge Johnson, 2012 Beginning in the 1830s and continuing for more than a century blackface minstrelsy stage performances that claimed to represent the culture of black Americans remained arguably the most popular entertainment in North America A renewed scholarly interest in this contentious form of entertainment has produced studies treating a range of issues its contradictory depictions of class race and gender its role in the development of racial stereotyping and its legacy in humor dance and music and in live performance film and television The style and substance of minstrelsy persist in popular music tap and hip hop dance the language of the standup comic and everyday rituals of contemporary culture The blackface makeup all but disappeared for a time though its influence never diminished and recently even the makeup has been making a comeback This collection of original essays brings together a group of prominent scholars of blackface performance to reflect on this complex and troublesome tradition Essays consider the early relationship of the blackface performer with American politics and the antislavery movement the relationship of minstrels to the commonplace compromises of the touring show business and to the mechanization of the industrial revolution the exploration and exploitation of blackface in the mass media by D W Griffith and Spike Lee in early sound animation and in reality television and the recent reappropriation of the form at home
