Stephan Barthel, Marketta Kytä, 2020-01-30 The world is urbanizing at an unprecedented rate It is estimated that in the near future urban landscapes for another ca 2.7 billion people will be built on planet Earth approximately converting land equivalent to the size of South Africa Such land conversion coupled with citizen densification increasing inequalities shifting diets and emerging technologies challenge human well being and pose ever increasing demand for resources generated by the Biosphere This Research Topic concentrates on the various ways urbanization can promote individual well being mental physical and social health as well as ecological health a healthy Biosphere What kind of affordances for human health promotion can urbanization include What kinds of affordances for a psychological connection with nature can urbanization include What kinds of nudges for pro environmental behavior and consumption decreasing detrimental consumption behaviors can be actively designed in urban settings The Research Topic at hand uses a transactional approach where an affordance can be understood as a non deterministic in situ precondition for a human activity enabled by relations between abilities of an individual with features of an environment We encourage a broad definition of the concept of affordances where the environment must not be restricted to the material biophysical environment alone but also could be combined with social immaterial features We see that the transactional approach of this Research Topic posits that meaning arises in relations between humans and their environment that it will be equally applicable to natural and designed environments and that it doesn't regard dichotomies like city contra nature or social contra ecological Hence this Research Topic is interested in if the transactional approach can be used as a conceptual tool not only for promotion of mental physical and social health in cities but simultaneously for unraveling relations at the micro scale in cities which can be used for solutions that also promote a healthy Biosphere

Phylogenomic Discordance in Plant Systematics Stefan Wanke,Susann Wicke,2023-11-15 Phylogenetics often uncovers contradicting hypotheses regarding the relationships within the same group of organisms a phenomenon known since the beginning of the molecular systematics era While historically single marker based analyses produced discordance nowadays entire cellular genomes or portions of the same genomic compartment conflict with others or the rest respectively In contrast to the beginning of the molecular systematics era when adding markers and taxa offered a way out of systematic errors genome inference based incongruences cannot be addressed and explained easily Disagreeing phylogenomic hypotheses might originate from various evolutionary processes including but not limited to hybridization or incomplete lineage sorting thereby leading to gene tree versus species tree associated discrepancies Today this can be expanded to genome discordance where phylogenomic signals of organellar genomes plastid mitochondrial and the nuclear genome disagree due to intrinsically different coalescent paths or phenomena like organelle capture
