

The Wolseley Viper was a British aircraft engine of WWI developed from the successful design of the Wolseley Viper 470. The engineers of Wolseley Motors Company responsible for adapting the Viper 470 decided not to rely on compression but rather built an almost identical 5. As a result they incorporated a few more technical improvements of the time the Wolseley Viper 626. It featured the 10 cylinders the Viper 470. It featured a few higher compression, greater power and was built from reliable materials. At a time when the Viper 470 was still important, improved features to flight. The Wolseley Viper was produced in great numbers being 1500 built.
