Leadership and Adoption of Instructional Technology in Schools Curtis D. Brandon Sr., 2008-05 This applied dissertation was designed to investigate the characteristics most represented in two school districts an inner city and a suburban district These characteristics were related to the innovativeness of the school district and the perception of individual leadership in schools that have passed the performance criteria for state accreditation Forty schools and 200 principals were randomly selected to participate in the study for a period of 3 to 4 months The researcher used three instruments to determine whether differences existed between the two districts in regard to performance on the Standards of Learning assessments He developed a checklist for interview questions on instructional technology strategies that might be implemented by leaders and teachers in the classroom A Perceived Organizational Innovativeness Scale was used to measure the innovativeness of the school district and an Individual Innovativeness Scale was used to measure the perception of individual leaders concerning the innovativeness of the school district The findings indicated that organization innovativeness contributed to the innovativeness of individuals such as leaders Leaders categorized by innovativeness contributed to the overall structure of the organization by means of social networks with predictable human behavior in the organization The passing of the Standards of Learning assessment and the schools proven performance and accreditation status were clearly related to the behavioral patterns of individual and the social networks implemented by the leadership

Southern Stalemate Christopher Bonastia, 2012-01-11 In 1959 Virginia's Prince Edward County closed its public schools rather than obey a court order to desegregate For five years black children were left to fend for themselves while the courts decided if the county could continue to deny its citizens public education Investigating this remarkable and nearly forgotten story of local state and federal political confrontation Christopher Bonastia recounts the test of wills that pitted resolute African Americans against equally steadfast white segregationists in a battle over the future of public education in America Beginning in 1951 when black high school students protested unequal facilities and continuing through the return of whites to public schools in the 1970s and 1980s Bonastia describes the struggle over education during the civil rights era and the human suffering that came with it as well as the inspiring determination of black residents to see justice served Artfully exploring the lessons of the Prince Edward saga Southern Stalemate unearths new insights about the evolution of modern conservatism and the politics of race in America

Five Miles Away, A World Apart James E. Ryan, 2010-08-06 How is it that half a century after Brown v Board of Education educational opportunities remain so unequal for black and white students not to mention poor and wealthy ones In his important new book Five Miles Away A World Apart James E Ryan answers this question by tracing the fortunes of two schools in Richmond Virginia one in the city and the other in the suburbs Ryan shows how court rulings in the 1970s limiting the scope of desegregation laid the groundwork for the sharp disparities between urban and suburban public schools that persist to this day The Supreme Court in accord with the wishes of the Nixon administration allowed the suburbs to lock nonresidents out of their school systems City schools whose student bodies were becoming increasingly poor and black simply received more funding a measure that has proven largely ineffective while the independence and superiority of suburban schools remained sacrosanct Weaving together court opinions social science research and compelling interviews with students teachers and principals Ryan explains why all the major education reforms since the 1970s including school finance litigation school choice and the No Child Left Behind Act have failed to bridge the gap between urban and suburban schools and have unintentionally entrenched segregation by race and class As long as that segregation continues Ryan forcefully argues so too will educational inequality Ryan closes by suggesting innovative ways to promote school integration which would take advantage of unprecedented demographic shifts and an embrace of diversity among young adults Exhaustively researched and elegantly written by one of the nation's leading education law scholars Five Miles Away A World Apart ties together like no other book a half century's worth of education law and politics into a coherent if disturbing whole It will be of interest to anyone who has ever wondered why our schools are so unequal and whether there is anything to be done about it Insurrection Keith David Reeves, 2015-10-01 Enough Private interests politicians reformers and pundits have had their chance and enough is enough Teachers have been pushed around and pushed to the edge and the time for tolerating the failed system of our public education policies is over It's time to drag the standardized testing commercial complex out of our schools kicking and screaming if need be and take back our schools for our kids The revolution has already begun We must understand the etiology of the American public school's seeming inability to meaningfully and holistically teach every child if we are to have any hope of changing that school for the better We must wrestle with the philosophical sociological and psychological roots of our misperception and mistreatment of children in order to change the way we understand our students We must also understand the history of reform in American education in order to avoid repeating failed experiments Once we do this we can dismantle the traditional structures of the American Public School deliberately and thoughtfully and capitalize upon the intense zeitgeist of the movement against corporatized standardized multiple choice testing in order to truly revolutionize our schools Over five sequential sections Insurrection addresses educational philosophy the system of schools the social issue of misunderstanding children replacement structures for those that are incompatible with understandings corrected in the first three sections and a possible manner in which current school employees can lend their efforts to the revolution called for by Sir Ken Robinson in his 2010 TED Talk which served as the impetus for the work We Are the Ones We Have Been Waiting For Peter Levine, 2015 In September 2011 two leading civic engagement advocacy organizations headed respectively by Robert Putnam and Peter Levine released a joint report showing that a region's level of civic engagement was a strong predictor of its ability to recover from the Great Recession This finding confirms what advocates of civic engagement have long hypothesized that strengthening the networks between government and civil society and increasing citizen participation results in better government and better community outcomes However citizens concerned about the economic crisis need more than just deliberation or community organizing alone to achieve these outcomes What they need according to Peter Levine is a movement devoted to civic renewal Deliberative democracy the idea that true democratic legitimacy derives from open inclusive discussion and dialogue rather than simple voting has become an extremely influential concept in the last two decades In We Are the Ones We Have Been Waiting For Peter Levine contends that effective deliberative democracy depends upon effective community advocacy Deliberation he shows is most valuable when talk and debate are integrated into a community's everyday life To illustrate how it works Levine draws lessons from both community organizing and developmental psychology and uses examples of successful efforts from communities across America as well as fledgling democracies in Africa and Eastern Europe By engaging in this type of civic work American citizens can meaningfully contribute to civic renewal which in turn will address serious social problems that cannot be fixed in any other way
